HALIFAX, Sunday, Feb. 14.

The R. M. steamship Niagara, Capt. MILLER, from Liverpool at about 10 o'clock A. M. of Saturday, the 30th ult., arrived at Halifax at 7¾ o'clock A. M. of Sunday, the 14th inst.

Among her passengers are his Excellency the Hon. the Earl of MULGRAVE, the newly-appointed Governor of Nova Scotia, his family and suite.

The Niagara experienced heavy weather during the whole passage.

She reports passing on the 30th the American ships Henry Clay and Ann Hooper, and the bark Statesman, off Yarmouth, N. S., bound for Liverpool. She passed the steamship Africa, from New-York, Jan. 20, off Holyhead, at 6 o'clock P. M. of the 30th; on the 31st she passed the American ship Benares, off Kinsale.

The Collins steamship Baltic, from New-York Jan. 16, arrived at Liverpool at 1 o'clock P. M. of the 28th.

The propeller New-York, also from New-York Jan. 16, arrived at Greenock on the afternoon of the 28th.

GREAT BRITAIN.

Parliament would assemble on the 4th of February. Lord PALMERSTON had, as usual, issued a circular soliciting the early attendance of the supporters of the Government, as affairs of considerable importance would come under discussion.

A numerous deputation had waited on Lord PALMERSTON to urge the immediate abolition of the Church rates. They met with such lukewarm encouragement that they adopted an indignant resolution, and pledged themselves to press forward an independent bill on the subject.

Prince FREDERICK WILLIAM of Prussia had been invested with the order of the Garter.

The Leviathan had been pushed twenty-five feet off the ends of the launching ways, and her cradles were being removed. She had over 17 feet of water under her, and it was expected that she would float on the 30th or 31st.

A resolution pending before the General Court of Directors of the East India Company, deprecating the proposed change in the government of India, was carried by an almost unanimous vote.

The London Advertiser asserts that the Indian Bill will not be nearly so sweeping as is generally believed, and as was at first intended. Ministers will consent to modifications in the measure, in its passage through Parliament, and that it will not pass this year. If not withdrawn, it will be shelved at the end of the session.

Heavy drafts of troops were under orders to embark for India.

The Bank of England reduced the rate of discount on the 29th to four per cent. The reduction had little or no effect on the money market or stock exchange.

The London Times remarks on the subject that there is a prospect that the tendency for a considerable period may be towards increased ease in the money market. For the last week or two the applications at the Bank for discount have almost entirely ceased. They are still likely to be of a very moderate character since the minimum rate in the open market has for some days not been higher than three per cent., while in the Stock Exchange the supply is abundant at two.

The interest on deposits allowed by the discount houses has been reduced to 2½ per cent.

The Daily News says that some persons are disposed to look for a further reduction in the Bank minimum.

INDIA.

The correspondence from Calcutta to Dec. 24 adds nothing of importance to the telegraphic dispatches which anticipated the mail.

The Times correspondent gives a circumstantial account of the Windham affair, but the facts do not differ from those already before the public. The scenes after WINDHAM'S defeat are said to have been fearful. The Hospitals were crowded to suffocation. The enemy directed their fire spirally upon them, and it was not till Sir COLIN CAMPBELL returned, and with a dozen haughty words brought every man to his place, that order was restored.

LATEST FROM INDIA.

LONDON, Friday Night.

The Government has received a telegram from Malta, announcing the arrival of the Bombay Mail of January at Suez. The news is of little importance. Sir COLIN CAMPBELL was at Cawnpore at last advices, but he was expected shortly to move westward with a powerful force.

Sir JAMES OUTRAM, at Alumbagh, attacked and defeated the enemy on the 22d of December, and captured four guns. He sustained but trifling loss. Gen. ROBERTS is appointed to the command of a full force in Rajahpotana, which is assembling at Deesa, and will march on to Musserabad.

No fresh disturbances have occurred in any part of the Deccan or Central India.

The Punjab is tranquil.

CHINA.

The correspondent of the Times, writing from Canton River under date of Dec. 16, says that YEH has returned an insolent answer to the ultimatum of the English and French Plenipotentiaries, and that the two forces would in a few days attack Canton. Lord ELGIN'S demand was of the most temperate character. He asked for no more than that the treaty should be carried out; that Canton should be put upon the same footing as the other treaty ports—its gates open to commerce; that compensation be given for the damage to British merchants; and that the occupation of the Island of Honan be acquiesced in, as a material guarantee, until all matters are settled.

A letter from Hong-Kong says that YEH'S answer to Lord ELGIN is couched in a sarcastic vein. He tells his lordship that the question of the treatment of strangers at Canton has been settled by a decree of the Emperor; that Sir GEORGE BONHAM was made a baronet for respecting that decree; and recommends Lord ELGIN to follow his example; and, as for compensation YEH, had demanded of the British Government for losses suffered by China.

A few days before this answer was received, Mr. REID, the American Commissioner, solicited an interview in the city, and YEH replied that he would meet him outside of the city, but that no barbarian should set foot within the limits of Canton.

The army of the line is to be divided into five great commands, to be confided to Marshals CASTELLANE, BOSQUET, PELLISSIER, CANROBERT and VAILLANT; with their head-quarters at Paris, Nancy, Lyons, Toulouse and Tours.

Addresses from some of the regiments to the Emperor, are worded in such strong language as to attract much attention. The Zouaves almost regretted that they had no opportunity to manifest their zeal in a striking manner; and the address of the Eighty-second Regiment contains the following sentence:

"And if your Majesty wants soldiers to reach these men, even in their haunts, we humbly pray you to designate the Eighty-second Regiment as part of the advanced guard of this army."

Addresses from other regiments appear to have been worded still stronger, for the Moniteur has omitted some of the paragraphs.

LONDON, Saturday—A. M.

FINANCIAL.

The Times City Article says:

The funds are moderately steady to-day, but the market is without animation, and manifestations encouraged in French official and military quarters would probably have led to further depression, but for the investments on the part of bankers and others, who in the present state of the Discount market are unable to employ their money, except in Government Stocks or Exchange Bills.

In the Stock Exchange, loans are obtainable at from 1⅝@2 ₱ cent., and in the Discount Market, exceptional transactions have taken place below 3 ₱ cent.

The London and country banks have to-day decided to take in no fresh deposits at a lighter rate than 2 ₱ cent. The Union Bank has also reduced its allowance to 2½ ₱ cent.

Nearly £90,000 in gold was taken to the Bank today. In foreign exchanges this afternoon rates remain about the same as at the last post.

The Daily News City Article says:

This has been a dull day in the Stock Exchange. The funds experienced very little variation, and closed the same as yesterday, but the share market, especially for British railways, was weaker. In the Stock Exchange it was scarcely possible to lend money on Government securities at any rate, however low.

Arrival of the North Star.

The steamship North Star, from Southampton on the 27th of January, arrived at this port on Saturday afternoon.

The North Star brings London papers of the 27th ult., being one day later than those received by any previous arrival.

The Paris correspondent of the London News says "There is disunion in the cabinet on the subject of the proposed 'repressive measures.' People even speak of a 'ministerial crisis.' But the expressions used in regard to the difficulty, whatever it may be, which has arisen in the entourage of the Tuileries, only prove the poverty of language. There is no such thing as a 'cabinet.' In France, and there can be no ministerial crisis in the sense understood in countries where ministers are responsible to the nations."

Important Meeting of the New-York and Erie Stockholders in London.

The English Bond and Stockholders in the New-York and Erie Railroad met at the London Tavern on the 26th ult., to be introduced to Mr. C. MORAN, the new President of the Company, who had just arrived in England with the object of raising the additional capital required for completing the line, and for developing its resources.

Mr. CAMPBELL, the Chairman of the Committee, who presided, in introducing Mr. MORAN, said that he had great pleasure in assuring the meeting, and all who were interested in the Company, that they possessed in their present President that great element in the success of all railroad corporations, the undivided energies and personal superintendance of an experienced man of business. Mr. MORAN was a thorough railway reformer, who, since his acceptance of office last July, had, amongst other reforms, abolished the free pass system, and had increased the rate of fares and freights wherever it could be done without prejudice to the interests of the Company, and had, by reducing salaries, effected a considerable saving in the expenses, and had also entered into negotiations with other railways with which they were connected to introduce similar reforms. Mr. MORAN was also prepared to introduce into their railway, and so far as he could into the railway system of America generally, some of those reforms which had worked so well in this country, and had so materially ameliorated our railway system. In the first place he was willing to establish the practice of half-yearly meetings; secondly, that auditors should be appointed, in order that the accounts should be regularly inspected, audited, and examined on behalf of the shareholders. [Hear.] And he was also willing that the whole money expenditure, and any increase of capital or addition to the bonded debt, should emanate from the proprietors and be subject to their approval. The meeting might judge of the importance of these changes when he told them that scarcely in any railway in the United States had the shareholders possessed any voice in the management of their affairs. [Hear, hear.] They had periodical meetings, it was true, but they were merely convened for the election of officers, and the transaction of formal business. It was subsequent to those meetings that the Directors usually issued their reports; and they did so without calling the shareholders together to adopt or to reject them. Hitherto railway shareholders in the States had had no voice in the appropriation of the funds or the management of the Company, and it was in a great measure owing to this circumstance that so many of these corporations in that country had failed as a source of profit to those who invested their money in them. This explanation would enable them to judge of the importance of the reforms Mr. MORAN was about to inaugurate. After some further remarks on the object of Mr. MORAN'S visit and the prospects of the New York and Erie Railroad, Mr. CAMPBELL introduced the President.

Mr. MORAN, after remarking that he had the disadvantage of appearing before them a perfect stranger, said that the complaint of mismanagement advanced against American railroads was consequent upon a defect which obtained also very much in the railways of this country, that was the having to act through an agent who did not feel practically and directly the weight of the opinion of the shareholders. The railroads of the United States had so far exceeded the results anticipated by their originators, that they had become over sanguine, and had stopped at nothing in the shape of expense in extending them. That was the great source of the difficulty and embarrassment that had been felt, and he believed in many cases in England it was the same. After describing the circumstances under which the scheme had originated, the difficulties it had to meet, and the various financial arrangements it had entered into for overcoming them—the error fallen into by the old company in not commencing the line at Piermont immediately opposite New-York, but twenty miles higher up the Hudson, where the water was shallow, which had necessitated the making of a pier a mile long at a great expense, he referred to the advantages which would result from the terminus which the new company had commenced immediately opposite Piermont, from whence the old company ought to have started, which, the moment it was completed, would form its central point, and, from the great facilities they would afford, bring a large accession of traffic to the line. There would also be a considerable traffic in coal, iron and timber from the pier—so that what had promised to be a total loss would in the end turn out to be worth what it had cost. The cause of their embarrassment was, that having reorganized the concern with a subscription of $3,000,000, they had entered into an expenditure of $38,000,000, and it was easy to understand that a corporation having to borrow from day to day must be affected in its credit according as money was dear or cheap. This circumstance had for five years made them the butt of the bears of New-York, with whom were associated those cautious individuals who would not invest in anything so new as a railway. The consequence was that when the crisis occurred their stock went down considerably. This was a line that had no reason to fear competition. No doubt too many railways had been constructed in the States, and that the competition consequent thereon in a country where the population was not dense tended to keep down profits; but it was not so with their lines that ran from the Western States direct to the Atlantic. Of these there were four, constituting, perhaps, the most complete railroad monopoly that existed in the States. There was the New-York Central, but that was, at its terminus, 150 miles from New-York City, and could not, therefore, compete with them for the New-York traffic. Then there was the Hudson River line, which passed through a more densely peopled district than their own, but had not the same elements of success, their act of incorporation limiting them to a charge of two cents per mile, while the New-York and Erie, which had no such limit, charged three; besides which they had to contend with the burden of an enormous capital, which prevented their purchasing the equipment for the heavy goods to traffic upon which this Company most relied. The others were the Pennsylvania Central, a good line, reaching to Pittsburg, and the Baltimore and Ohio, south of Pennsylvania. The Pennsylvania Central was the best line, no doubt, for passing to the Alleghany mountains; but it had the disadvantage of 96 grades to one mile, against 65 on the New-York and Erie. Any person conversant with railways would at once see the great disadvantages of 96 and 116, as was the case in the Baltimore line, against 65, in the conveyance of heavy goods traffic. Besides, these great lines were so distant that, except to a traffic that commenced 500 miles from the Atlantic, practically they did not compete at all. Then their line bordered the State of Pennsylvania, giving a ready access for the coal and iron of that district to New-York; and, in addition, every ton of goods brought over the New-York Central must pass over the New-York and Erie ere it could reach the port. After sketching the geographical position of the line in reference to the great streams of water communication—the Delaware, the Susquehanna, and the Alleghany—which he said would all become feeders to it in bringing down to it the produce of the West on its way to New-York City, and other advantages which it possessed, he repeated that their difficulty had arisen from the inadequate capital with which they commenced—$3,000,000 was all that the shareholders had contributed, though the present share capital amounted to $11,000,000. The capital had been increased to $10,000,000 by issuing shares in payment of contracts for iron, equipment and other things necessary to carry on the traffic. He was happy to say that this had not been done at so great a sacrifice as many would suppose, under the circumstances, must be incurred, the shares having been taken up, upon the rate of ninety cents per dollar. The large funded debt for which they were liable had been raised on terms equally favorable, and would not be felt as any serious burden. All that was requisite to make the line successful and to bring a good return for the money invested was intelligence, activity and economy in the management. [Hear, hear.] In the scheme they had presented to the public for raising the money necessary for extricating the company from its difficulties, they believed the interests of the stockholders and bondholders of all classes had been considered. The bonded debt was large, and it was important to both the bonded creditors and the unbonded that no further sacrifice should be made. There were 12,000,000 of unsecured bonds issued, and 13,000,000 of mortgaged bonds. Of the former 1,400,000 had been purchased by the sinking fund, leaving the debt at 10,500,000. To the holders of these ten and a half millions of bonds, which were claims against the company, subject to all the fluctuations of greater or less prosperity, and all errors of management, they would, he thought, be offering a very valuable privilege in giving them the security of mortgage bonds, and placing them in the position of other mortgagees. It might be objected that the unsecured bondholders had not anticipated that another series of bonds would be placed before their claims. But that was no fault of the managers. The blame rested with the bondholders themselves, for when they purchased the bonds, knowing that they were secured bonds, they should have satisfied themselves of the conditions upon which they advanced the money, and that no new mortgage debt could be contracted. The law did not recognize ignorance as a plea unless there had been misrepresentation. There was, however ample traffic to pay the interest upon every class of bonds, together with those which were about to be created. The scheme laid before the proprietors would raise $3,000,000, and extinguish $3,000,000 in bonds, and what was more important, would entirely extinguish the floating debt, which had always operated to the prejudice of the Company, while it would enable them to complete the works and the terminus opposite New-York. It might not be sufficient for the erection of all the buildings necessary to accommodate the traffic in addition, but it would give them what they much needed, the terminus, and to develop the resources of the line. He had no doubt that the unsecured bonds, which were now standing at 10c.@50c. the dollar, would, if this arrangement were confirmed, take a jump, in a few days, of 15c.@20c.; so that it would benefit the holders of those bonds as well as the Company generally.

Some conversation ensued after Mr. MORAN had finished speaking, and the following resolutions were then proposed and adopted:

"That this meeting having heard the statement made by CHARLES MORAN, Esq., President of the New-York and Erie Railroad, desire to impress on their fellow bondholders the importance of cooperating with that gentleman in his efforts to rescue the road from its present temporary difficulties, and that with this view it is of the utmost importance that all bondholders join in completing the subscription to the new loan proposed to be raised by the Company.

It is agreed that all persons subscribing to the 4th mortgage shall be allowed to subscribe at par to a 5th mortgage a sum equal to half their subscriptions to the 4th mortgage, and that such subscriptions be received entirely in unsecured bonds.

It is further understood that the 5th mortgage is not to exceed $5,000,000 in the whole, of which $2,000,000 are to be reserved for the future wants of the company, and paid in cash, or its equivalent.

That with a view of attaining the above result, parties are earnestly recommended to send in their subscriptions to the Committee within the next ten days, so as to enable Mr. MORAN, before his departure, to make the necessary financial arrangements for the estimate of the company.

That subscribers to the new or fourth mortgage loan shall have precedence in the order of their application."

Thanks were then voted to Mr. MORAN for his able exposition of the present state and future prospects of the New-York and Erie Railway Company, and the usual compliment to the Chairman concluded the proceedings.

The Presents to the Princess Royal.

From the London Times.

Yesterday afternoon the representatives of the public were admitted to Buckingham Palace to see the magnificent collection of bridal gifts which have been presented to the Princess Royal by every member of the royal family, by most of the illustrious guests who have lately honored Her Majesty with a visit, and by some of the chief personages of the illustrious house with which she is now so happily connected.

The exhibition of wedding gifts on these occasions is generally made with some display of taste and skill in the combination of colors and general effect, so as at least to exhibit the objects fairly, if not to see them off to advantage. Under such circumstances, and with proper management, such displays are often very attractive; and with the intense interest which attaches to all relating to the Princess Royal, it would not be easy to render gifts to her ohter than deeply interesting. If anything, however, could have detracted from the effect, and even interest, of these magnificent cadeaux it was the manner in which the functionaries connected with the Palace displayed them. We do not speak of the style in which they were put together on a table in the small billiard-room. It is quite possible that the arrangement might be a matter of taste; but it surprised us to find that many of the presents were left without anything to indicate the quarter whence they came, and the only information beyond the name of the person who gave it, which it was in any case possible to obtain was the cost price of almost every article exhibited, and whether it was silver gilt, or only gilt on "metal." This ungracious knowledge, which is generally kept so carefully in the background when gifts are in the question, was, as we have said, almost the only kind obtainable beyond the actual sight of the anonymous articles to which it related. One functionary, however, possessed not even this limited information, though he knew the things "was very valuable as he was put there to prevent them being stolen." Most of the articles, however, were ticketed with the name of the illustrious individual from whom they came, so that a catalogue raisonnée could be formed which we append, only as a general rule withholding the price list. The most conspicuous among the brilliant mass was the present of the King and Queen of Prussia—a lofty open coronet of diamonds, the design of which, with its spires of brilliants and open shell work between, is probably one of the most chaste and graceful that has ever been executed. Equal with this are those given by Her Majesty. The first is a broad diamond necklace, with a treble row of the most brilliant drops and long pointed terminals, which match the light tracery of the coronet. The second gift from the Royal mother consists of three massive brooches, somewhat in the style and size of the Scotch plaid brooch, but which, instead of having an open circlet in the middle, are in each case filled with a noble pearl of the very largest size and purity of color. The Prince Consort gives a superb bracelet of brilliants and emeralds, which is beautiful both in design and execution, and is altogether a most costly present. This has additional interest in the eyes of visitors from its being one of the bracelets which the young bride wore at the Royal Chapel on Monday last. That which she wore on the left arm was also a diamond and emerald bracelet, presented by the gentlemen of the Royal Household, but which, though a splendid present, and probably equal in value to the Prince's, is much inferior to it in design, and still more so in the manner in which it is set.

The gift of the Prince of Wales is in rich beauty of effect far superior to them all. It is a suite of ear-rings, brooch, and necklace of opals and diamonds; but the opals, in play of color and irridescence, are superior to any we have yet seen, and the design of the settings is quite in keeping with the exquisite beauty of the stones they inclose. As we have said, in magnificent, and at the same time chaste effect, this gift surpasses all. But the present of the bridegroom is perhaps the most costly, though in appearance the most simple of any. It is a necklace of pearls, and our readers may easily judge of their value when we say that the necklace, though full-sized, only requires 36 to complete the entire circle, which graduates in size from the centre, tapering less and less in size of jewels as it approaches each end. The three centre pearls in this superb circlet are said to be of great value. The Queen gives a third present of three silver candelabra, which form the most regal looking group in silver we have ever seen. The centre piece springs from an elaborate base, and is surrounded by large groups of figures exquisitely chased in full relief. This supports between 20 and 30 branches, and is four feet high. The two others are to match the centre, and are equally elaborate and almost equally massive and lofty. There was no ticket to indicate whom this was given to, one of the authorities stating most positively that it was a present from the Queen to the bridegroom, while another asserted that it was presented to the bridegroom's father. As, however, the former statement seemed infinitely more probable, we must believe it to be the correct one. The Princess of Prussia gives a truly regal gift of a stomacher brooch of brilliants. The stones in this superb ornament are large and of the purest water, and the setting and design are exquisite. The Princess ALICE gives a small, but beautifully formed brooch of pearls; and the Princesses HELENA, LOUISA, VICTORIA give each a massive stud brooch or button, similar in shape to those in diamond and pearl of the Queen's gifts, which we have already mentioned. These brooches are of massive gold, ornamented with pearls and emeralds, pearls and rubies, and pearls and sapphires. The Duchess of CAMBRIDGE gives a noble bracelet of diamonds and opals, and the Princess MARY her portrait in massive gold frame and stand. One of the most beautiful of all, however, is the gift of the bride's royal father-in-law, the Prince of Prussia. It is a magnificent necklace, with pendants of exquisite design. It is composed of pure brilliants and turquoises, and is called, from the size, rarity, and value of the latter gems, the turquoise necklace. The bride's grandmother, the venerable Duchess of KENT, gives a most magnificent and useful present. It is a large and most costly dressing-case, containing sufficient articles to fit out the toilet tables of a dozen ladies of quality, and all of which are of massive silver gilt enriched with bright red coral. The simplicity and exquisite beauty of the designs for these things are not to be surpassed. Next, probably, to this in costliness, though infinitely reduced in regard to size, is the gift of the MAHARAJAH DULEEP SINGH, which is one of the most fairy-like opera-glasses ever used by lady. The design is elaborate—arabesques of gold on white enamel, with a double border and enrichment of diamonds. In a little card-box, with a delicate fringe left out to show the pattern, is the gift of his Majesty the King of the Belgians. It is a Brussels lace dress made expressly for the young bride, and our readers will be best able to judge of its exquisite beauty and carefully elaborated workmanship when we state that it is valued at no less than 50,000f., or £2,000 sterling. The Duchess of Saxe-Weimar gives a magnificent bracelet of rubies, diamonds and emeralds, and the Duke and Duchess of Saxe-Coburg gave plain gold bracelets with enamel miniatures of the givers on each. Conspicuous among the piles of jewelry and plate is a characteristic gift, a large edition of the sacred volume—a Bible, bound in the most costly and gorgeous style. On the fly-leaf is inscribed

"The Committee of the British and Foreign Bible Society to her Royal Highness the Princess Royal, on the occasion of her marriage, with sincere prayers to Almighty God for her happiness in time and eternity.

SHAFTESBURY,
President."

January, 1858.

There is also a writing-desk to match the dressing-case, and in which the contents are equally valuable and chaste. This is the gift of the Duchess of BUCCLEUCH. The Marchioness of BREADALBANE gives a toilet hand-mirror, with the frame of massive gold set with pearls, and the handle composed entirely of one brilliant cairngorm. Other things are there, too, which were rich and costly in the extreme, but none of them were ticketed, nor was it possible to ascertain from whom or whence they came. Of the little presents from the schools at Balmoral—the gifts of embroidery and Berlin work—the thousand nameless little tokens of affectionate remembrance which the young bride has received from all parts—not one was shown. The bad taste of such an exclusion needs no comment. It was, however, stated that all, even of what was costly, had not been displayed. This may very likely be the case, and may also account for the absence of any gifts from some of the late Royal guests.

Burning of the American Ship New-England at Sea—Loss of Life.

From the Manchester Examiner.

On Sunday morning the bark Cora Linn arrived at Liverpool from St. John's, New-Brunswick, having on board the commander, officers and crew of the ship New-England, destroyed by fire on the 9th inst. The New-England was commanded by Captain PEMBERTON, and was bound from New-York to Glasgow, with a crew of 18 men, including officers. The chief officer states that the ship left New-York on Christmas Day, and encountered a succession of gales which caused the vessel to leak. On the 8th of January, she encountered a tremendous hurricane, and had seven feet of water in the hold. On the 9th, the officers of the doomed ship commenced throwing the cargo overboard. The chief officer thus reports the calamity: "The cargo stowed in the passengers' galley, in the forward house on deck, consisted of 23 barrels of coal oil or 'naphtha.' Succeeded in getting it nearly all out, when, about 10 A. M., and in an instant, a loud report like that of a cannon was heard, and an explosion took place. In an instant the ship was enveloped in flames from the main hatch forward. The naphtha exploded, ran in liquid fire fore and aft the vessel, floating on the surface of the water on deck, washing over the spars and bulwarks, with the motion of the ship. The most fearful cries were heard all over the ship, five of the crew being on fire and burnt. In a few minutes got the force-pumps working, and tried to put the fire out and save the ship, but the hose was burnt, and the men driven from the pump by flames, (the wind being aft,) and forced to seek refuge in the foretop. The spare spars on deck, the water-casks, the forward house and forecastle, and the bulwarks on both sides burnt with great rapidity. The maintopmast staysail now caught fire, and burnt off the main and maintopmast stays. In about 20 minutes the foremast fell, and went over the starboard side, and in its fall brought down the maintopgallantmast, the sails having been previously burnt away. The bark Cora Linn bore down as fast as possible to the ship, and dispatched a boat to our relief in charge of the second officer. Finding it impossible to to save the ship, and half of the crew being burnt, cut away the boats. Launched one, and the second officer and three others got into her; this boat got under the counter, the ship falling on her, and nearly swamped it, but they succeeded in bailing her out. Those remaining on the burning wreck now launched the life-boat with good success. The ship had now come up to the wind and began to pitch to the sea, which was heavy, and the main and maintopmast stays being destroyed the mainmast threatened to fall over the stern every minute. No time was to be lost; all hands remaining on board sprang for the boat, and jumped from the ship. Some missing their mark fell overboard, and were dragged into the boat. One man was severely injured on the head, being caught between the ship's side and the boat. Having now abandoned the ship to her fate, and all hands being in the boats, pulled away for the bark, and deposited the crew on board of her in safety, where they received a hearty welcome from her noble captain, her officers and crew, and every attention was paid to the wants of the sufferers. During the time the ship was burning JOHN TAYLOR, seaman, was on the house were the naphtha was stowed; he rushed on deck, all in flames, the skin of his face all burnt off. He either fell or threw himself in the water on deck, and the liquid fire washed over him. He was dragged aft, and bucket after bucket of water thrown over him; still he continued to burn. His arms were burnt to a crisp, and his body from head to foot one black mass. He was taken on board the bark, (after falling overboard,) where he lingered until the next night, unconscious of pain, when death relieved him." Five other men, who were seriously burnt and injured, had been placed under medical treatment at Liverpool.

Movements of War-Ships—General Lamar—Difficulty in Crossing the Isthmus—Railroad Statistics—Killed by an Alligator.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ASPINWALL, Wednesday, Feb. 3, 1858.

There is no news from the interior of Nicaragua here, and none of any particular interest from Greytown. The Jamestown sloop-of-war arrived here on the 31st ultimo, and the British line-of-battle-ship Brunswick next day, both from Greytown. The Brunswick left the United States steam frigate Susquehanna there, as, also, the British side-wheel frigate Leopard. The Brunswick ran on to a rock at the Pearl Keys, about fifty miles from Greytown, in getting under way, and was not gotten off until after twenty-three hours. Happily she did not sustain much damage. The Susquehanna started to her assistance. The United States steamer Fulton left this port this morning at 9 o'clock for Greytown, with dispatches for Captain SANDS, of the Susquehanna. She will return immediately. On her way back she will stop at Old Providence, a depeudency of New-Granada, to inquire into alleged outrages on American commerce there. Within the last few months, three American schooners, the Vespasian, the William Cobb and Sheffield, have gone ashore on the reefs of Old Providence. On the 3d ult. the William Cobb, nearly a new vessel, from this port, struck on the reef, and was lost. Captain ENRICOTT complains that the cargo was robbed, not only by the people, but by the Regidor, himself arrested for complaining, and treated with the greatest indignity. He was even obliged to send off his letter of complaint to Mr. FOX, the United States Consul here, by stealth. The two other schooners were also robbed.

It is alleged by some that these occurrences are the result of the fact that when the steamship Northern Light went ashore there, the master came away without paying his bills for assistance. But this is a very lame excuse. The steamer did not pay her bills at the time because the master considered the amounts demanded exorbitant But the claimants, or their representative, came up here, an arbitration was held, and a liberal compensation accorded to every one. At any rate, the agent professed to be satisfied. The United States Consul at Aspinwall goes down on the Fulton to institute the necessary inquiries.

General LAMAR, who took passage on the Fulton for Greytown, on the 17th ult., from Aspinwall, left the former point in the steamer Charles Morgan, manned and officered, as I understand, from the Susquehanna. But notwithstanding the ten days' work on the Morgan by Captain SANDS' engineers and carpenters, in getting her repaired and ready, she broke down a few miles up the river, and was obliged to return. She, however, started again on the same evening. It is probable the General has reached Managua by this time, although he may be detained at the head of the river for transportation across the lake.

A gentleman from Greytown, now here, says a line cannot be opened to California, across the Isthmus of Nicaragua, in less than four months, even should the quarrels of the different claimants cease at once. He describes the property in river and lake steamers to be even worse than I wrote you it was in my last. The machinery of the only two river boats now remaining is rusted out and broken, one of the lake boats, the Virgin, rendered unserviceable by ANDERSON'S party, and the Costa Ricans have much abused the other, the San Carlos.

The American brig Moselle, from Carthagena to Aspinwall, with cross ties to the Panama Railroad Company, sprung a leak and was abandoned by her crew a fortnight since, about 100 miles from this port. No lives lost. The American brig H. P. Russell, bound to this port, put into Porto Bello, the other day, with loss of spars and sails.

Mrs. JULIA DEAN HAYNE was a passenger on the Golden Age, and went to New-Orleans to-day, on the Granada. Capt. ROBERT H. PEARSON, who has commanded Panama and California steamships since 1849, goes to New-York to-day on the Star of the West. During his long command he has obtained high popularity among passengers. He has never met with an accident during his whole nine years' service.

I send you a few railroad statistics, although it is probable your Commercial Editor may have used them a fortnight since:

The balance to credit income account during the three years the railroad has been in operation, after paying 12 per cent. per year dividend, is $390,112. The number of passengers carried, both ways, over the road in 1855 was 29,017; in 1856, 31,327; in 1857, 31,277. Amount of gold in 1855, $31,662,510; silver, $4,929,634;—in 1856, gold, $48,240,411; silver, $9,439,648;—in 1857, gold, $45,964,457; silver, $7,422,356; jewelry, $844,490. In tonnage the road shows a rapid increase. In 1855 it carried 10,614 tons; in 1856, 20,100 tons; in 1857, 66,132 tons! These figures evidence a high degree of prosperity in this Company, and excellent management on the part of the officers. The iron bridges of the road have now nearly all been completed, a great part of it ballasted, and the depôts built,—so that the expenses of the corporation from this time forward must be much less than in past years, thus leaving much larger dividends. It is possible the passenger receipts may fall off some in 1858, but the freight must increase. The whole income from freight the past year, including gold, silver, mails, etc., is nearly equal to that from passengers. The expenses of the road have only been a little more than 25 per cent. of the receipts.

This morning, while the passenger train was waiting at Patun for the train to Panama to pass, a black baggage-master, by the name of DAVIS, went into the Chagres River to bathe. He was seized by an alligator, drawn under the water and drowned. This is the second accident of the kind within a short time. F. W. R.

Progress of the Peruvian Revolution—Discovery of an American Filibustering Enterprise Against Peru—Popularity of the New President of Bolivia—Severe Monetary Crisis in Chili.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PANAMA, Tuesday, Feb. 2, 1858.

By the British Mail steamer Bogota, which arrived here on the 21st from Valparaiso and Callao, I received the following letter from a gentleman at Lima, whose position enables him to become well acquainted with all political matters that are transpiring in Peru, and whose judgment in regard to what he writes is not apt to be at fault:

LIMA, Tuesday, Jan. 12, 1858.

There has been no change in the politics of Peru within the past fortnight. The members of the National Legislature, who were driven out from the Chamber at the point of the bayonet the first part of November, have given up all hope of being able to reassemble, and those who belong in the Provinces have generally returned to their homes. And this, notwithstanding that CASTILLA tardily disapproved of the violent action of the military, and the Council of Ministers, who hold the reins of the Government, also pretend to disapprove of this Cromwellian act. While no one believes the country has lost anything by the dispersion of a body that had been three years in session doing nothing, every thinking person will doubt the capacity of a people to appreciate the benefits of a free government, who can quietly assent to, and even approve of, such a solution as was given by ARGUEDAS, and his soldiers, to the squabbles of the national representatives at Lima.

CASTILLA is still, with his 4,500 men, before Arequipa, where he has been for the last five months, but his force is gradually dwindling away. The rainy season has now commenced, and he cannot possibly remain in his present position another month. Arequipa, and the approaches to it, are strong natural fortifications of themselves, and they have been much strengthened while CASILLA has been lying idle, looking on. If any portion of the besieging party should force its way into the city, it would be overwhelmed by the garrison and the citizens, so great are the facilities for defence. The streets are extremely narrow, the houses forming solid walls on both sides, from which a shower of bullets would rain down upon the assailants. So if he attacks the city he is lost. And if he retires to Pancarpata, without an assault, as it is said he is preparing to do, he is surely lost. If he does no take Arequipa, and I have no idea that he can, the whole country is prepared to declare against him. Several of CASTILLA's officers, foreseeing the downfall of their chief, have quit his service and returned to Lima. In receiving their resignation, CASTILLA gives them a very frank certificate of cowardice, but this will not prevent dozens from following their example.

On the 25th of December a fight or skirmish, which lasted five hours, took place between a portion of CASTILLA's force and the civilians of Arequipa. The former lost some twenty or thirty in killed and wounded, and were then obliged to retire. Under the protection of VIVANCO's steam frigate, the Apurimac, Gen. RIVAS had organized in the port of Iquique a force of about 300 men, which would be transported to the port of Ilo, and take possession of the departments of Moquegua and Tacna, which are badly defended.

VIVANCO has established a foundry at Arequipa, for the casting of cannon, and has already turned out some fine pieces, which he is mounting on the walls. He has only about 1,250 men under his command to oppose his enemy, but these are very enthusiastic, and are supported by the citizens in a most determined manner. A project is on foot to reinforce him rom Chili, but it is not probable it will succeed.

We expect every day to hear that the Apurimac has again taken possession of the Chinchas in the name of VIVANCO, in which case there will be some more fine speculations in guano. The Chilians made the most of the money at the time VIVANCO held the Islands before—but if he gets them again the Yankees will be in on a grand scale. In the meantime Chilian vessels are taking guano from the Lobos, under Vivance contracts of $16 per ton—about half the usual price—and for this, they pay one-fourth down in cash, one-fourth in munitions of war, and one-half in paper.

From what I have written, you will perceive that the star of CASTILLA is no longer in the ascendant—but who will succeed him, and at what cost to this poor, distracted country, heaven only knows. Don DOMINGO ELIAS is the name that is in most men's mouths—but Don DOMINGO is a weak man, possessed of but little administrative ability, and would only be set up to be knocked down again on a quickly convenient occasion.

Lima has been under some excitement the past fortnight, in consequence of the discovery of an attempted Yankee filibuster invasion. It appears that LOUIS LOMER, a Jew slave-trader in Chinese, who has been driving quite a profitable business in that line here during the past three years, made a contract in November, 1856, with Ex-President ECHENIQUE and VIVANCO, to furnish them with 400 Americans, to aid the former in regaining the Presidency. The correspondence between the parties, embracing twelve to fifteen letters, has been discovered, and LOMER taken and imprisoned in the castle at Callao, to await the decision of the Government. It appears by these documents, which are published in full in the Comercio that HERMAN LOMER, brother of LOUIS, was the New-York agent in this speculation. After several postponements of the agreement made between ECHENIQUE and the LOMERS, in the month of January, 1857, the contract was confirmed, in which LOMER contracted to deliver to ECHENIQUE 400 men, 5,000 muskets, at $18 dollars each; 1,000 pair horse-pistols at $8 per pair; 500 sabres at $6 each; six tons of powder at $1.000 per ton, and two tons of lead at $400 per ton, moulds, &c., &c. In order to transport these men and munitions, Mr. LOMER made a contract, Jan. 2, 1857, with CORNELIUS VANDERBILT, to purchase from him, at the price of four hundred thousand dollars, (worth perhaps $80,000,) the California steamer Cortes, the said steamer to be delivered to LOMER, at Panama, when she might be needed. These sums were to be part paid by 10,000 tons guano, at $20 per ton, when ECHENIQUE or VINANCO should have charge of the islands. This contract was subsequently transferred to CYRENIUS FITZGERALD, (of GARRISON & MORGAN'S Nicaraguan Transit Company,) in an instrument made before the United States Consul at Panama. On the 4th of September, 1857, General MOROTE incloses a copy of the power which the Supreme Chief (Revolutionary) of Peru had granted him to make contracts for the sale of guano, with LOMER & Co., in exchange for ships and munitions of war, and advising them to hurry in their arrangements.

In this letter Gen. MOROTE advises that the steamer touch in to Rio Janeiro for coal, etc., Oct. 6. LOMER writes to MOROTE that he is in error in supposing his steamer is to be bought from the Atlantic States—that it would be impossible to place a steamer in Peru from the Atlantic in the time stipulated, that is, the first part of February, 1858. Besides, he says OSMA, the Peruvian Minister at Washington, is very vigilant and watched him too closely for that. The munitions would be sent to Panama by way of Aspinwall, from whence they could be dispatched, without hindrance from the authorities of the Isthmus, as if they were going to California. In this letter LOMER begs very hard that the order may be sent to him, entitling him to 10,000 tons of guano, as his funds had been all expended in the cause, the times were very tight and the expenses to Panama of the men and munitions had to be paid for in cash. He promises to have everything ready at Panama in four months. On the 22d of October, LOMER again writes from New-York that he has enrolled 400 excellent men, that all the munitions of war were ready, and that all he was waiting for was the order for the guano with which to pay the first installment of the expenses. On the 19th of December, 1857, dated on board the steamer Granada, at New-York, LOMER informs General MOROTE that everything is ready; that the steamer Cortes is expected in Panama on the 15th of February; that on the 5th of the same month the 400 men would sail from New-York with the arms and munitions; that his brother would sail with the expedition; that he had bought a large quantity of munitions of war at New-Orleans, which it was necessary he should pay for immediately, and asks for vales for 2,500 tons of guano at once, with which to settle the account; says he has engaged a vessel to take forward the munitions, and deliver them at whatever point the frigate Apurimac may be lying.

These documents appear to be all in regular order, VANDERBELT's agreement and all, signed, sealed and attested. But, nevertheless, there are many who believe the whole thing was a game on the part of LOMER and BROTHER to swindle parties in New-York with guano vales; and that the object of LOUIS LOMER in returning to Lima was to forge these vales, to remit to his brother HERMANN in New-York. The discovery made through LOMER's babbling to a fellow-passenger spoiled the scheme, and got LOMER into a fix in which powder and ball and a file of marines will be called into requisition, unless VIVANCO shall get at the top of the heap before his trial is terminated. BOLIVIA.

Dates from La Paz are to 28th December. It is said that Mr. DANA, United States Minister Resident, was about to resign. Dr. LINARES, the new President, was very popular. He was busy in effecting postal improvements, and in reforming many old abuses. The Consul of New-Granada at Cochabamba, had demanded $9,000 from the Government, money that was robbed from him during the late revolution. The Republic was completely tranquil.

CHILI.

I wrote you by last steamer that two of the Cabinet of President MONTT, who were appointed as a compromise with a liberal party, had resigned, and that their places had been filled by the appointment of two of the President's friends. These two last had not yet accepted office, or, at least, had not entered upon it. The cause of the Cabinet difficulty was this: The President refused to approve of the nomination of two judges, because they did not belong to his party; whereupon the Minister of Justice and the Secretary of the Treasury replied that, if that was a good reason for the Judges' rejection, it ought to be a good reason why they (the Ministers) should no longer remain in office, as they also were politically opposed to the President. This is causing a considerable excitement, and parties were uniting against the President in order to force him to yield.

On the night of the 17th December, a block of buildings, composed of coffee-houses and a private house in Custom-House-square, took fire, and were, with all their contents, consumed. Loss, part of which was insured, $200,000.

The Sardinian bark San Jorge, with a number of sisters of charity and priests, which was supposed to have been lost in the Straits of Magellan, had arrived, after a passage of 227 days from Europe. Besides her own people, the bark brought 117 officers and men of the Chilian war steamer Isabel, which had been sent to look for the San Jorge, and which was wrecked in Misericordia Bay, in the Straits, in sight of the bark. The steamer struck against a sunken rock, and was a total loss. She also lost six months' supply of provisions, which she was taking down for the Colony of Magellan. The steamer had been recently bought in England, at a cost of $200,000. The French ship St. Vincent de Paul had arrived at Valparaiso, with 49 sisters of charity and two priests for Chili and Peru.

Madame ANNA BISHOP is concertizing in Chili, and Madame THIERRY doing the dancing.

The monetary crisis is severely felt in Valparaiso, but none but a few second-class houses have failed, although all "are more or less behindhand in their payments," and are only sustained by mutual forbearance. The last fortnight, ending Dec. 31, has been completely bare of important business transactions, owing to the scarcity of money and the dearness of products. The crops, however, look well, and the harvest, which is just beginning, will be abundant, especially in wheat. In mining, business is growing better. The silver ores of Atacama are increasing. Labor is scarce and high. Flour in Conception was held at $6 50 per quintal. There had been imported in the year 1857, 28.500 quintals Carolina rice, and 2,490,000 lbs. American refined sugar. Imports of all sorts of sugar for 1857, 23.918,300 lbs., against 17,000,000 lbs in 1856. There was about 9.000,000 feet pine lumber on hand, mostly common American, which is a supply for two years. Copper in bars was held at $20; silver, $10 25 per marc. Freights to Europe, £2 10s @ £3.

The British ship Salvadora fell in, Nov. 28, in lat. 36° South, with the American ship Antoinette, and boarding her, found her abandoned. A few minutes after the Salvadora's boats left her, she foundered. F. W. R.

ONE MONTH LATER FROM UTAH.

Unreliable Rumors—Brigham's Army—Governor Cummings' Proclamation in Salt Lake—Disposition of the Mormons—Speeches by Mormon Elders.

We have received files of the Deseret News, from Salt Lake City, to the 6th of December.

The San Francisco papers publish various reports respecting the movements of the United States troops, but they are wholly unreliable. One rumor in particular, that a fight had taken place at Echo Cañon, is manifestly untrue, as much later advices received in this City, direct from the camp, have made no mention of any such event.

The Deseret News is silent in regard to the position of the United States troops, their condition, or as to a collision having taken place between them and the Mormons. From this source, nothing is to be expected calculated to throw light on the actual condition of affairs in the Territory. There is less reference made to the army and Government of the United States in the "remarks" of the rulers of the Church than heretofore, and it is only by carefully perusing these harangues that we can discover any hints as to the purposes of the Mormon leaders regarding them.

BRIGHAM'S army has been put into much better condition than it was. Clothing and provisions have been supplied to them, the poor people in many cases denying themselves the necessaries of life, in order to make up the supplies requisite to maintain an army in the field.

Governor CUMMINGS had issued his proclamation from Fort Bridger, in Utah Territory, eleven miles east of the city, formerly in Salt Lake County. It announces that he had been appointed Governor of Utah Territory by the President, and calls upon the people who had collected in armed bodies, in opposition to the laws, to disperse to their respective homes, stating that those parties who had been engaged in the lawless acts of burning the wagons should be brought to punishment.

The proclamation had been received at Great Salt Lake City, and read in the Tabernacle, on the 6th December. Very free comments were passed upon it, Mr. CARRINGTON, of the News, insisting that it was unofficial, not having specified that the appointment was "by the President of the United States." The Elders of the Church, decided, consequently, that they had as yet no information of the appointment of a new Governor.

After reading the proclamation, it was reported among the crowd outside the Tabernacle that BRIGHAM had stated he would admit Governor CUMMINGS, but that none of the troops would be permitted to accompany him. This looks like backing down.

The Mormon troops, under Lieutenant-General WELLS, had returned to the city, leaving about fifty men in the mountains to hold the passes and watch the enemy. The "boys" brought with them from 1,000 to 1,500 head of cattle.

It is said that they were out of salt, which on BRIGHAM hearing, he sent them 800 pounds. It appearing inexpedient to receive presents from those who have evinced such hostility, the ambassadors were sent back, and their saline present with them—with the admonition that if they returned to camp again, they would be made to eat all the salt they had brought.

Before the arrival of the United States troops at Fort Bridger, the Mormons had laid the building in ruins, and burned the grass on the plains. Fort Bridger is in an extensive plain, of considerable altitude, with a very severe climate—the snow this year being unusually deep. Availing themselves of the standing walls, the troops had stretched canvas across them, and so secured comparative shelter. There is a good deal of brush in the immediate vicinity, with plenty of timber within ten miles.

From this point, however, in consequence of the heavy snows, they will not be able to reach the city before the first of May. Before that time, the city may be occupied by an army, if sent by the way of Los Angeles valley.

There is now no communication over the Carson Valley route.

It having been understood that Col. ALEXANDER had made a movement as if he intended to enter the city from the north by Bear River, it seems from a hint BRIGHAM let fall, that he has dispatched a force to meet him there. This is to be inferred from the fact of seizing the cattle from a man in the north, to supply the wants of his troops.

The Mormons are preparing for a long contest. Being free from molestation by the army till May or June, they are all busy putting in crops—a much greater breadth of land will be cultivated than before.

The advanced parties of the emigrants from San Bernardino, were met within 200 miles of Salt Lake City. From that point companies were met till within a short distance of this State, a few having only recently started out. They were all well, had not suffered in the least on the journey, nor found any obstruction from snows.

The mail came through in twenty-six days, in wagons, being less than schedule time.

HARANGUES BY MORMON ELDERS.

BRIGHAM ASSUMING A MORE PACIFIC TONE.

BRIGHAM YOUNG, in the Tabernacle on the 25th of October, says:

"As has been observed by Br. JOHN, my eldest brother, this is the first time that we have ever had the privilege of doing anything only submitting to our enemies. Now, for the first time since this Church was organized, we are in a position for defending those rights common to all American citizens, and our true and lawful course to abide by the Constitution of the United States in the defence of those rights will probably give the wicked a pretext for complaint, so that in measuring out oppression to us our enemies will have a new set of pretexts, instead of feasting on infernal lies so much as they have hitherto done.

Colonel ALEXANDER accuses us of what he terms a very uncivilized method of warfare. If we are to do as they do, we shall have to get drunk, to swear, to quarrel, to lie and believe in lies, and indulge in many other like traits of civilization, in order to be prepared to act as they do. I do not know anything about those men that are now in the mountains, only in the capacity of a mob. I have no business to know them as anything else, neither shall I, until I have been officially notified that the Government of the United States wishes to send troops here and build stations.

I suppose that the boys have annoyed them a good deal, but at the same time I would much rather clothe them and feed them, if they would agree to go back in the Spring and leave us in peace, as they found us. We are obliged to maintain our rights, for every blackleg, horse-thief, counterfeiter and abominable character are united with the hireling priests and lying editors and wicked leaders of our Government, to falsely accuse the "Mormons," with a view to our destruction. Can they now truly accuse them of anything? Yes, of burning up a little grass, as brother ATTWOOD told them, when they asked him why we burnt the grass, "that we may have a better crop next year," which you are aware is customary in prairie regions. We have done that; therefore our enemies can now concentrate their power to shoot at the target they have compelled us to raise in self-defence, whereas heretofore they have shot without an object to fire at.

We are now as free from them as is the mountai air we breathe, and we could wipe the few enemies now in our borders out of existence in a very short time, if I would give the word to do so, but they will judge themselves out of their own mouths and receive their justreward at the hands of him whom they have listed to obey. I believe the Lord has wisdom enough to make them destroy themselves, though if it were left to me solely under the guidance of the spirit pertaining to the man, probably I should have had them in eternity before now. But the Lord dictates, governs and controls; I do not, neither do I wish to.

In a speech delivered in the Tabernacle on the 22d of November, BRIGHAM YOUNG concluded with the following remarks:

"It would do you good to look out yonder in the mountains and see our brethren warmly clad and well provided for. The brethren and sisters here and in the neighborhoods round about have literally answered to our calls, and every time have supplied more than was called for. Will they part with everything, if it is called for? Yes. I have heard but of one man, since the brethren went out to watch the enemy, a man up North, who really wished the brethren to spare his ox, but they butchered him before his eyes. I said amen to it. If his god can be slain as easily as that, it is an excellent thing for him. If any of you have gods in horses, or in oxen, make an offering of them forthwith, and tell the boys who are going out that they are welcome to them. They are welcome to all mine; if you don't believe it, try it.

We are a blessed people, and we shall be preserved from our enemies, if we will continue to do right, and the Lord will sustain us. And I tell you that this people will do right and God will sustain us. Ere long Zion will triumph and the glory and knowledge of God will cover the earth, and we will still be in the old ship Zion and ride all wicked opposition down to destruction. May God help us so to do. Amen.

BRIGHAM in the Tabernacle, on the 15th of November, says:

You hear some of the brethren surmise that we are going to have trouble. You need not expect any trouble, except you take a course to bring it upon you. You need never expect to see sorrow unless your own conduct, conversation and acts bring it to your hearts.

"Brother PHINEAS correctly observed in his remarks that if ten men are united in these mountains they are not to be overcome by their enemies. Is this whole people perfectly united? I fear not. When I undertake to present before this people the true principles of the priesthood, I almost shudder, because so many do not yet understand them, and cannot receive them.

"I will tell you my faith in regard to the brethren now in the mountains. Gen. WELLS takes the charge, and when I write to him I counsel him to do as the Holy Ghost shall dictate him, and inform him that whatever he may order and perform, he has my faith and influence to sustain him.

I pray God to turn away our enemies, to put hooks in their jaws and turn them wherever he will, with their gold, their horses and all they possess. They do not know the "Mormons." they are strangers to this people, are full of wrath and malice towards us, but they know not why. They know not that they are stirred to anger against us by the enemy of all righteousness. Should those who instigated the sending of this army undertake to come here, there will be another scenery, for they are more or less acquainted with us and know that we are the most upright people on the earth, and they will not be able to shield themselves in the garb of ignorance. I will not talk about them, for you know their history and you know and have seen much of the squalid wretchedness, of the wicked inhabitants of the earth. Is there honor and virtue among them? Where is the man or woman among them that is to be trusted? If there is here and there any semblance of goodness or virtue it is at once overcome by every fiendish art in their power. Women are overcome by sycophants, by those who rule the nation and those who have power and influence in the various States, parties and religious sects. Man is overcome by man; they cuddle and wink and gamble and run to and fro in abominations of every grade, and lift their voices for and against each other as did the Paddy in his petition to the king for an office, wherein he stated that he would vote for or against him, right for him or fight him, just as he wished it.

Colonel ALEXANDER, probably one of the best men in the army now near Bridger Runs, told one of our messengers, when reprieving to a piece of advice I had given him to resign his commission rather than be found operating against an innocent people, that he was compelled to remain in the army, for if he resigned he knew not how to manage to sustain his family. He said, "I have no other means of support; I cannot throw up my commission, for then I should have no means to support my wife and children." As an American, shame and confusion would overwhelm me, were I to even think of trying to sustain my family by siding with tyranny and oppression. That is the only circumstance I wish to name. They are sent ostensibly to civilize the people, but I do not wish to talk much about such nonsense. The whole world is wrapt up in the garment of corruption, confusion and destruction, and they are fast making their way down to hell, while we have the words of eternal life.

The whole world are sadly in want of what they call a master spirit. That is what the Government of the United States are deprived of; there is not one to be found among them, neither in the Cabinet of the President nor in the Senate of the United States, they are all gone, and there is no one in their midst competent to lead and dictate in the affairs of our General Government; but, as they say, it is with them a period of mediocrity. It has been acknowledged by Great Britain that the master spirits are fled; there are none in the British Parliament, and they know not what to do. Let this people come to that condition and say that they have no person capable of dictating and leading them, and you will be in the whirlpool of delusion. It will be every man for himself, and you would not know what to do; you would not know how to dictate your own affairs. It is this which overwhelms the world in confusion and makes it Babylon, while the priesthood elevates mankind and dictates the husband, the wife and the children and all they have.

John Taylor Expounds the History of Mormon Grievances.

JOHN TAYLOR, one of the Twelve Apostles, in his discourse in the Tabernacle, Nov. 1, says:

The first thing we did when we came to this land was to organize a Government for our protection, which was according to the pattern set us by our neighbors, Oregon for instance; then represented our case to the United States.

We came out here because we were disfranchised, exiled, robbed of our rights as American citizens and forced to wander in the wilderness to seek among the savages of the forest that freedom denied us by Christianity. Did we in this transgress any laws of the United States, depart from any usage, or act contrary to any established custom or law of the Government? We did not. We applied for the sanction of Congress to our doings, and it was a matter of astonishment and surprise that we should take such steps, after the usage we had received: our course was applauded by statesmen, senators and members of Congress and the authorities of the United States generally, and all our transactions, Constitution and laws were approved gladly, considered right and according to the usages and laws of the United States.

By and bye we petitioned for a Territorial Government and obtained it. Our enemies have all the time been complaining of us that we have infringed upon the Constitution and laws of the United States. But I ask wherein have we done it? Who appointed our Governor? The President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, according to the usage which exists, but indeed contrary to any right they possessed, still he did it. Who appointed our Judges, United States Marshal, Secretary of State, Indian Agency? The President of the United States.

Has there been another Governor appointed? I suppose there has, but he has not yet been qualified. No man has authority to act in the gubernatorial capacity in this Territory at the present time according to the laws of the United States but Governor YOUNG. No Governor has a right to act here, although he may have been appointed by the President of the United States, until he comes here and is qualified. No man has ever come yet to be qualified, and consequently Gov. YOUNG stands legitimately in that place.

What law have we transgressed? I have tried to find out. We have examined the Constitution of the United States, and the laws pertaining to these matters, and if anybody here or elsewhere can point out any law that we have transgressed as American citizens, they know more about it than I have been able to learn, and I should like such a person to put me in possession of that information.

What next? Why, on the back of this, after lying about us, slandering, abusing and imposing upon us; trampling upon our rights, and sending the meanest curses among us that ever disgraced the footstool of God—men they are ashamed of themselves, they have now sent an armed force, contrary to law and right, and to the principles that ought to prevail in the United States. They have no more right to do this than I have to cut any of your throats.

There is no authority guaranteed to the President of the United States to perpetrate so diabolical an act as the one he has engaged in. Why is it that this is done? Is it because we are worse than other people? No. After raking up everything they could, before I left the States, the only thing they could find against us as a people was that we had burned some books belonging to the United States Court, and since that I have seen published affidavits totally denying any such thing, by the Clerk of that Court.

The President of the United States has now taken upon himself the responsibility of sending into this Territory an armed force to trample upon the rights of 100.000 American freemen, on purpose to subserve a political interest, for the benefit of his own party. It becomes a serious question with us what to do under these circumstances. Shall we lay down and let those scoundrels cut our throats?—is the first question. Shall we untie our neckcloths and tell them to come on and cut and carve away as they please, and knock down, drag out, and introduce their abominations among us—their cursed Christian institutions—to prostitute our women and lay low our best men? Shall we suffer it, I say?

There are certain things that are sacred to us and to every man and woman: if we submit to a thing of that sort, we submit to see the very institutions of our own nation trampled under foot, the Constitution of our country desecrated and rent in pieces. We submit to see the bonds severed that have bound this nation together, and blood, anarchy and confusion prevail.

If they have a mind to cut each other's throats we have no objections. We say, success to both parties; but when they come to cut ours without ceremony, we say, Hands off, gentlemen. We are not so religious as to sit down meekly, and tamely submit to these things. We understand something of the difference between what some call treason or treasonable acts and base submission to the will of a tyrant who would seek to bring us into servile chains—into perfect submission to his sway.

We are engaged here in protecting ourselves, our wives and families; in guarding everything that is sacred and honorable among men, from invasion and oppression of some of the most corrupt wretches that ever disgraced the footstool of God.

"This is pretty plain talk," say you. I meant to talk plain; I do not wish to be misunderstood. I have lately been conversant with some of their proceedings, having been in their neighborhood for some time recently. Some of our brethren who went among them with messages have said that such was the filth and obscenity of their language—cursing, swearing, and every meanness that, rather than stay all night with them, they chose to go off some distance and lay on the ground. Let these are the feelings of our brethren, some of whom are rough and uncouth in their manners, we know not how our sisters would feel in such delicate society.

We will not submit to such a state of things forever. If you, our enemies, are determined to invade our rights, trample upon our liberties, snatch from us the rich boon we have inherited from our fathers, to make us bow in vile subservience to your will, we will resist you; we will not submit to it. We will say, Stand back and give us our rights. We will act the part of freemen, and we say it shall be "the kingdom of God or nothing."

Why is it that we are persecuted? It is because we believe in the establishment of the kingdom of God upon the earth; because we say and know that God has established his kingdom; because the principles of righteousness are introduced among the children of men, and they expose the evils, corruptions, priestcraft, political craft and the abominations that everywhere exist; they lay naked before all men the abominable acts of the human family. It is not because there is evil among us, but because there is goodness, truth, holiness. It is because God has spoken and his word has had effect on our hearts, to govern and influence our conduct.

And now, having been forced from the United States, after having been driven time and time again from our homes by our murderous enemies; having fulfilled all the requirements that God or man could require of us, and kept every law necessary for us to observe; after all this, and more, I say, shall we suffer those poor, miserable, damned, infernal scoundrels to come here and infringe upon our sacred rights?

["No" resounded throughout the Tabernacle, making the walls of the building tremble.]

No, it shall be "the kingdom of God or nothing" with us. That is my text, I believe, and we will stick to it, we will maintain it, and, in the name of Israel's God, the kingdom of God shall roll on and all the powers of earth and hell cannot stop its progress; it is onward, onward, onward, from this time henceforth, to all eternity.

[Voices of "Amen."]

"Are you not afraid of being killed?" you may ask me. No. Great conscience!—who cares about being killed? They cannot kill you. They may shoot a ball into you and your body may fall, but you will live. Who cares about dying? We are associated with eternal principles; they are within us as a well springing up to eternal life; we have begun to live forever.

Who would be afraid of a poor, miserable soldier, a man that gets eight dollars a month for killing people—and a miserable butcher at that, one of the poorest curses in creation? Mean as the Americans are, they will not, many of them, hire for soldiers, but the Government must hire foreigners for eight dollars a month to come out here to kill us. Who is afraid of them? Let them come on or stay and wiggle, it is all right.

We are the Saints of God; we have the kingdom of God, and the devils in hell and all the wicked men on earth cannot take it from us. We shall rule and have dominion in the earth and they cannot help themselves. They may take their own course, they may fight against us if they like, or they can back out and leave us, but the kingdom will go on. They may take what course they please, the kingdom is ours and we are Christ's and Christ is God's.

HEBER C. KIMBALL INCLINES TO PEACE BUT AGAIN GETS BELLIGERENT.

HEBER C. KIMBALL in the Tabernacle on the 8th of November.

This great Mr. JOHNSTON, the commander of those troops, has come, I suppose. Br. GROESBECK has come in with his company from the States; God gave him wisdom and he is here and he escaped those troops. Mr. JOHNSTON says he is going to obey the President's orders and says he will come in, but by the time he goes up and down Ham's Fork a few times it will take away his strength. If you do not believe it, try some other Ham's Fork; I had as leave sit on a bayonet as a fork. He has had a fever all the way and will have a chill when he has lost his strength. He will have an all-killing chill. He will not come here; we have told you all the time they will not come, but he may attempt to come and then he may not, that is just as God has a mind to.

I feel the Lord designs the thing should move along and no blood be shed, because I do not consider God is as anxious we should be bloodthisty men as some may be. God designs we should be pure men and holding the oracles of God in holy and pure vessels, but when it is necessary that blood should be shed, we should be as ready to do that as to eat an apple; that is my religion, and I feel that our platter is pretty near clean of some things, and we calculate to keep it clean from this time henceforth and forever, and as the Scripture reads: "Lay judgment to the line and righteousness to the plummet." We shall do that thing and we will commence in the mountains. We shall clean the platter of all such scoundrels, and if men and women will not live their religion, but take a course to pervert the hearts of the righteous, we will "LAY judgment to the line and righteousnes to the plummet," and we will let you know that the earth can swallow you up, as it did Korah with his host, and as Brother TAYLOR says, you may dig your graves and we will slay you, and you may crawl into them.

I do not mean you, if you are not here; I mean those corrupt scoundrels. Well, this is just as Brother BRIGHAM has said here hundreds of times.

If those troops could have come in here, let me tell you, all the finest and smartest devils would have entered into the smartest bodies and come here to overturn us. You will not catch a mean, low, inferior, stupid devil in a smart man. I will tell you the devil has his smart men. Says he, "you get into a smart body;" smart spirits do not get into inferior bodies. Would you? No. Well, then, do you suppose they would do what we would not do, under the same circumstances.

Was not Lucifer a pretty smart lad? Just look at it—Son of the Morning—when all Heaven wept when he fell; he was a smart man. It takes a smart man, that is, one who thinks he is, to act the devil. Well, I merely speak of these things.

Well, they would come from Dan to Beersheba and from California to France, that is, wicked and abominable spirits would have come into this valley when those troops came, do you not see?—the blacklegs and highway robbers, and whoremongers and whores would have gathered into this place, if those troops could have come into this place, to have slain our leaders. Let me die an honorable man living my religion rather than to bow down to the cursed yoke again, as the Lord God liveth. They have made us stiffen our upper lip and now we have got to keep it stiff, I mean the upper lip, and if you grow as you ought, five years will not pass away before your lips will be five times as thick as they are now. JOSEPH had a high lip and he was a beautiful man, one of the most lovely men I ever saw, especially when the Spirit of God was in him, and his countenance was as white as the whitest thing you ever saw.

Why are you not wide awake? Cultivate, make, take and increase and bring forth those things that you need. You do not believe the gate is going to be shut down, do you? Mr. JOHNSTON says there shall not an article or a train come in except the Governor lets him come in. The Governor will not, except he grounds arms; and if he will ground arms, he will ground arms, and if he no ground arms, then he no ground arms, and he cannot come here. Gentlemen, your leaders all say he cannot come here. Why, if he wants to come here himself, with a few of his council—if they really want to come to see the Governor, they have the privilege, but they would have to ground arms; I am not going to take that word back; they have got to ground arms, from this time henceforth, but we have shouldered arms, and it is present arms, and do you not see the next thing is to take aim? JOSEPH, when he was in Nauvoo, on the house-top, drew his sword from the sheath and said it never should be sheathed again. Brother BRIGHAM has said the same, and Brother HEBER will back him in it, and so will every officer in the kingdom of God. What say you, brethren, will we go it? If so, raise your right hands and say Aye. [One loud "Aye" rang through the congregation.]

We are not going to bow down to the wicked any more. I had rather die as I am and fight my way than ever to go into their hands again. They probably, if they had had only sense enough, might have caused us to bow down our heads, and got the bow on Old Bright's neck. They will not pay the debts contracted by their own officers. They send the most damnable and contemptible scoundrels that they could to rule over us, and they abused us all the time, and God wanted they should. If they had not, perhaps we should have bowed down and got the yoke on our neck. Now perhaps they will try to draw back and say, "Let us give them a State Government and a few hundred thousand dollars, and see if we cannot pet them." When you see a thing of that kind, look out for the devil—he will be behind that curtain. When I see anything of that kind, I am suspicious.

We shall prescribe a course for the United States to take, after this. Well, you do not believe that, do you? Do as you are told, and see if it does not come to pass. You cannot tell whether I am a true man, unless you listen to me.

President H. C. KIMBALL, in an address in the Tabernacle on the 22d of November, says:

Brother BRIGHAM says he does not intend to burn up the houses, and cut down our fruit trees, and push over our walls, and this thing and that, until we come to the last pinch, and then you will see a flame, such a one as you never saw in Salt Lake. I will burn up my houses, my barns and granaries, should the Lord require it. You have heard me say many a time, I would have more joy to see my family in the mountains, to see them in rags, in sheepskins and goatskins, than to see them enjoying all the pleasure God ever gave to man, and serving the devil with and the other two, though badly wounded, managed to get into Salt Creek settlement, where they died of their wounds. COWAN attributes the death to the Indians, whom he represents as being very savage and ferocious to that section of the country. But coupled with the fact that of late all the murdered parties in the Mormon country happen somehow to be Gentiles, and the deadly hatred of the Mormons to all those who oppose their mad doctrines, we incline to the belief that they have been butchered by the Mormons themselves, or if by the savages, at least by their instigation. We will remain in this belief until we learn more of the mystery which now enshrouds their sad fate.

The road they traveled in reaching Salt Lake approaches the city from the northwest; the one which they would have taken in leaving the city to reach the command of our troops, (had they been allowed by BRIGHAM to have done so,) strikes out from the eastern portion of the city—and the point where they were attacked and murdered is south, the road traveled from Salt Lake to San Bernardino. We may be wrong in our judgment. But to us it appears plain that the renowned rebel BRIGHAM refused to allow them to pass through the city, and compelled them to return south, only to be murdered by his emissaries.

To get all the information we possibly could concerning the murdered party, we have conversed with Major ORMSBY, a well-known merchant of Genoa, who is now stopping in Placerville. The Major informs us he recollects perfectly well the gentlemen above alluded to. Their names he cannot now remember, but has them on the books in his store, as they deposited money with him, and transacted other business at his house during their stay in Genoa. He reports them as gentlemen of good address, with a considerable amount of funds in their possession, well armed and equipped, and as having excellent riding and pack animals. They told him they had a curiosity to take a look at the famous City of Salt Lake, and from thence would push on to see if they could make anything from our troops in the way of furnishing them with animals or other supplies, and spoke as if they had the means to engage in speculation of this kind. If they failed in this, they were to proceed direct to the States. On his return to Genoa, Major ORMSBY will forward to us the names of the murdered party, and Time alone, that revealer of crimes, must unravel the mystery which now surrounds their sad fate.

CALIFORNIA.

Political Intelligence.

MESSAGE OF THE RETIRING GOVERNOR.

The Legislature of California convened on the 4th of January NINIAN C. WHITESIDES, of Yuba, was chosen Speaker of the Assembly; and J. W. SCOBEY, Clerk. The Lieutenant-Governor being ex-officio President of the Senate, THOS. N. CAZNEAU was elected Secretary.

The most important matter touched upon in Governor JOHNSON'S message is the State finances. The retiring Governor congratulates the Legislature on the present healthy position of the treasury, and points with no little pride to a comparative exhibit of monetary affairs in past years. In 1855, the expenditures of the State Government exceeded the revenue collected, $436,668 87. In 1856, the excess of expenses was $144,888 71. While in 1857 the excess is the other way, the receipts exceeding the expenditures by the sum of $452,430 15. This result has been brought about by reducing the expenses of the Government more than one-half, and collecting, under the new revenue, stamp and license laws, a much larger amount of taxes than ever before. The Governor calculates that at the end of the present fiscal year there will be a surplus of at least $400,000 in the treasury, and advises that this money be applied to the payment of the State debt. The amount of taxable property in the State, in 1856, was $113,468,000; in 1857, it was increased $18,348,268 92—and was $131,806,268 92. Governor JOHNSON thinks that the amount of taxable property for the present year can safely be calculated at $140,000,000. He therefore recommends that the rate of taxation for the ordinary expenses of the State Government be reduced to 20 cents on the one hundred dollars. This with the 30 cents required by law for the interest and sinking fund of the public debt, would be but a total of 50 cents on the $100 for State taxes—to which, in case it is thought wise to erect a State Capitol, the addition of 5 cents on the $100 will be all that is necessary. The rate of taxation now is 70 cents on the $100.

The total amount of the public debt which now is authorized to be funded, is set down by Gov. JOHNSON at $3,702,365 59. There are, however, other equitable claims which the Governor thinks ought to be funded, which will swell the total of the bonded debt to $3,900,000.

The Message favors the establishment of Territorial Governments in Carson and Arizona: and recommends granting the Surveyor-General authority to establish, in conjunction with a Commission appointed by the Federal Government, the eastern boundary line of California, which it appears, has never yet been satisfactorily done.

MESSAGE OF THE GOVERNOR ELECT.

On the 8th of January Governor JOHN B. WELLER was inaugurated, with appropriate ceremonies, and proceeded to deliver a short address, which has been received with great favor in all parts of the State. The Governor had appointed FERRIS FORMAN, formerly postmaster of Sacramento, Secretary of State; and W. F. BROCKELBANK his private secretary.

The San Francisco Bulletin, giving a synopsis of the Governor's Message, says:

"With the exception of a slight fling at the Vigilance Committee, which, we suppose, was absolutely necessary to appease the pent-up wrath of the 'unterrified,' but which, in our opinion, had better been passed over in silence, as no one can find fault with its tenor, it is, beyond doubt, the best document of the kind that has ever emanated from a Governor of this State.

The following strong language, used by Governor WELLER, is a bold admission of some of the evils which the citizens of California have suffered at the hands of corrupt politicians:

'It is not strange that the people of California have sometimes been excited, even to madness, by the conduct of their public functionaries. The fact is undeniable that men have sought office in the State, not from a laudable ambition to be useful in contributing to its greatness, nor from an anxiety to acquire reputation and confer honor upon their families or kindred, but from a sordid desire to make money.'

This, with the bitter denunciation of ballot-box stuffers and itinerant politicians, coming from the highest officer in our State government, is truly refreshing, and, if strictly adhered to, will inaugurate a new era in California politics.

The Governor has uttered the almost universal public opinion in his comments on the unsettled condition of our land titles, and the injurious effects which have resulted from the Act of Congress of March 3, 1851, 'to facilitate the settlement of land titles,' in retarding the prosperity of the State, and causing endless litigation, ill-feeling, and frequently bloodshed.

He also recommends the most rigid system of economy in our financial affairs. He says: 'The people have heard enough from their public agents upon the subject of economy; they now demand that it shall be practiced.'

He alludes to our present iniquitous and disgraceful State Prison system, and draws a comparison between its expenses and that of Eastern States. While we are taxed the enormous sum of $155,000 for the support and transportation of prisoners, in the State of Indiana the whole amount of the ordinary expenses of the Government for the year ending in October, 1856, was $147 112; and during the succeeding year, was reduced to $59,522, and this with a population of nearly one million and a half!

He slightly hints at the justice of taxing mining claims; speaks in the most glowing terms of the necessity of encouraging and protecting our present educational system; says the stability of our republican institutions depends upon the education and improvement of the masses; and hopes that the fund set apart for educational purposes 'may never be diverted from its constitutional channel.' He also reviews the military operations for the protection of the overland route; suggests the great need of a speedy inland communication with the East, and alludes to the geographical advantages possessed by California for commanding the trade of both hemispheres. He deprecates the agitation of the Slavery question, and concludes with an appeal to the present Legislature to aid him in the discharge of his official duties, by not consuming more time than is indispensable to the transaction of public business, and declares he fixed determination to sign no bill unless he has had ample time to understand its contents."

A FUGITIVE SLAVE BILL.

A bill regarding fugitive slaves has been introduced in the California Legislature. The following is the principal clause:

"If any person or persons who may owe service, or be held to labor in any of the States of the United States, shall be brought, or may have been heretofore brought to this State, by the lawful owner or master of such person held to service, for the purpose of traveling through this State, or in good faith sojourning in this State with such person so held to service, and without the intention of residing in this State, or introducing Slavery or involuntary servitude into this State; and if any such person so held to service and labor shall escape from their master or owner while sojourning in or traveling through this State, such person shall not, by reason thereof, become free or be discharged from such service, but shall be delivered up to the owner or master upon demand and proper evidence of the fact that such person does owe service, and has so escaped therefrom."

KANSAS RESOLUTIONS INDORSING SENATOR DOUGLAS.

On the 16th of January Mr. GRAY, of San Francisco, introduced a preamble and resolutions into the Assembly, strongly indorsing the Kansas policy of Senator DOUGLAS. The preamble merely recapitulates the main features of Mr. DOUGLAS' bill for the admission of Kansas into the Union. The resolutions are as follows:

Resolved, The Senate concurring, that we, the people's representatives now assembled at the Capitol of the State of California, feel an ardent desire for the just and peaceable settlement of the Kansas question, and deem it incumbent on us to express our views freely and fully on a subject which interests all lovers of the Union, and the right of the people to govern themselves.

Resolved, That in the above synopsis of Mr. DOUGLAS' bill, we recognize the true Democratic principles that ought to govern, and indorse them to the fullest extent.

Resolved, That His Excellency, the Governor, be requested to furnish copies of these resolutions to our Senators and Representatives in Congress.

These resolutions, it was generally believed, would be tabled.

NEUTRALITY OF THE NICARAGUA ROUTE.

The following resolutions had been introduced in the Assembly and referred to the Committee on Federal Relations:

Whereas, It is all-important to the citizens of the State of California, that easy and abundant facilities should be afforded to induce and encourage emigration from the States on the east of the Rocky Mountains, as well as to afford a free and cheap mode of conveyance to our former homes in said States; and,

Whereas, A combination of events during the past year, has closed one of the principal highways from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and there being no prospect of its reopening under any reliable Government expectour own:

Resolved, by the Assembly, (the Senate concurring,) That our Senators in Congress be instructed and our Representatives requested, to use their utmost efforts to procure the adoption by the United States Government, of such measures as will guarantee the neutrality of the Nicaraguan Transit route, free from the insurrections and civil commotions which have hitherto disturb it; and, if necessary, to use the naval force of the Government for that purpose, so as to afford safe and speedy transit from ocean to ocean.

Resolved, That the Governor be requested to forward a copy of this preamble and resolution to our Representatives in Washington.

FUNDING OF THE SAN FRANCISCO DEBT.

The Alta says: "A bill providing for the funding of the equitable indebtedness of this city, that was rejected by the former Board of Examiners, has been introduced in the Assembly, and will probably pass. It provides for the creation of a Commission to examine and pass upon the floating debt not yet funded, and will probably have the effect of throwing out the scrip known as the Meiggs forgeries, some portion or all of the street warrants, and such others as have been issued for no legitimate equivalent."

Miscellaneous Intelligence.

THE SHERIFF OF LOS ANGELES MURDERED—THE MURDERER SLAIN.—The Los Angeles correspondent of the San Francisco Bulletin writing on the 8th of January says: "An inexplicable and horrible murder was committed in our midst yesterday by a man, an American and stranger, said to have lately come over the Plains from Texas, and who was either a desperado of the first class or crazy, by many thought to be the latter. The murderer's name was REED. He had only been here a few days. By the strangeness of some of his acts several persons had got the impression that he was a rogue or deranged, and had advised the Sheriff, WM. C. GETMAN, to keep a look-out for him. Yesterday, about noon, that officer with one or two assistants proceeded to a "Monte Pio," (a pawnbroker's establishment,) near the corner of Los Angeles and Aliso streets, where he was; and where but a little time before he had presented a pistol to the keeper and told him to take his (REED'S) life or he would make him. The Sheriff put his hand on REED'S shoulder and told him he wanted to speak to him. REED drew back and said, 'No you don't,' and drew out a Derringer from his pocket. GETMAN said, 'I do not want to hurt you; you are not going to shooting?' He (REED) immediately fired and shot GETMAN through the heart, and then retreated into the pawnbroker's shop, and began firing from behind the door to the officers and crowd that collected outside. He had, besides one or two Derringer's, two Colt's revolvers and a bowie knife in his belt; and some said he fired off from thirty to forty shots. He seemed to have had access to other loaded pistols in the shop. He was finally shot down by a great number of shots fired from without—after having killed the Sheriff and wounded an under-officer, W. W. JENKINS, in the thigh, with a pistol ball, which entered the fore part of the leg, but did not pass out. JENKINS' wound is thought not to be dangerous. REED'S body had at least a dozen bullet holes in it. The town for a time was wild with excitement. Mr. GETMAN had proved himself a most efficient and popular officer, the best, indeed, that we had ever had. He is the second Sheriff of this county who has been shot down within a year. Before all the circumstances were known, it was rumored that the murderer was a criminal from the upper country for whom the Sheriff had a writ, and that he was the same man who with others had stolen stock from Del-Valle, Yorba and other rancheros. Some regretted that he had not been taken alive, &c. But it appeared that the Sheriff only desired to take him before proper authorities to see if he were insane.

FUGITIVE SLAVE CASE IN SACRAMENTO.—The Alta says: "A slave case came up in Sacramento about ten days ago. A gentleman from Mississippi, C. A STOVALL, came to this State last Summer, bringing a slave named ARCHY with him, and was preparing to return by the steamer which leaves to-day, but the negro who had staid with him up to that time, then left him. The master had ARCHY arrested, and applied to GEO. PEN JOHNSTON for legal authority to take ARCHY as a slave to Mississippi. The Commissioner dismissed the application, saying he had no jurisdiction, because ARCHY did not come as a fugitive to the State. The friends of the slave have sued out a habeas corpus, but Judge ROBINSON, County Judge of Sacramento County, has postponed his decision of the case till the 23d inst."

MOVEMENTS OF LIEUTENANT BEALE.—Major BLAKE, commanding at San Diego, arrived on Jan 1 at Los Angeles with his command of First Dragoons, and afterwards started for the Cajon Pass, to connect with a detachment from Fort Tejon, under the command of Lieutenant MERCER—to await the arrival of Lieutenant BEALE and his party. The united command of eighty dragoons was to escort Lieutenant BEALE to the Colorado, and to hold their position there for one day after his departure therefrom. BEALE is to return to Fort Defiance in New-Mexico, over the route which he has explored for the Pacific Wagon Road, on the 35th parallel of latitude. The headquarters of the First Dragoons, Major BLAKE commanding, will be reestablished at Fort Tejon, on the return of the detachment from their march to the Colorado.

THE CAMELS.—The camels brought to this country by Lieutenant BEALE'S party, says the Los Angeles Star, are to remain for the present at Fort Tejon. They will probably be sent to Fort Yuma for use between that and the various posts in New-Mexico. They are peculiarly adapted for packing and express purposes in that section of country.

PURCHASE OF SONORA.—The following curious item is from the Los Angeles Star: "We may state that we have seen a letter from an officer in the army, at Fort Buchanan, to a gentleman at present in this City, in which the writer asserts that the State of Sonora has been purchased by the United States for the sum of $19,000,000, and that the treaty will be immediately laid before the Senate for ratification."

MURDEROUS AFFRAYS.—We clip the following items from the San Francisco Bulletin: "A desperate affray took place on the 6th January, in San Joaquin County, near Stockton, between JOHN VANCE and GABRIEL HONDSCHELL, in which both were wounded fatally. The dispute originated about a contested land title. HONDSCHELL fired six shots from a revolver at VANCE, and the latter discharged three at HONDSCHELL, and then beat him over the head with his pistol.

Another affray occurred at Suisun City, Solano County, on the 16th January, which resulted in the death of one, and the probable fatal wounding of another combatant. The parties are named DEAN, GAINES and BACEY. DEAN stabbed GAINES and ran. The latter followed, firing four shots from his revolver, when he fell dead. The expiring man's aim was true to the mark.

Yet another affray took place near Sonora on the 14th January, in which it is reported that four men were killed. The name of only one, D. C. EDMUNSON, has reached us. The difficulty originated in a dispute about some Chinese laborers."

OREGON.

Important Gold Discoveries on the Boundary Line—The Snake Indians Joining the Mormons—Rumors of Fights Between United States Troops and the Mormons.

We have advices from Portland, O. T., to the 14th of January.

It is reported that very rich mines have been discovered on some of the tributaries of Frazier's River, a stream whose mouth is nearly, if not quite, on the line between Washington Territory and the British possessions. One man is said to have brought down 24 pounds of gold; another 16; another 18; and so great was the stir that Governor DOUGLAS, the British Executive, had posted notices at Victoria, forbidding any person to go up to the mines without previously procuring a license.

A railroad is in contemplation from Astoria to Eugene City.

The steamer Express, while coming out of the Basin opposite Oregon City, had struck a rock and was only saved from sinking by the greatest exertion of all on board.

The Portland Standard, of the 2d of January, says: "A gentleman from Wasco County informs us that STOCK WHITLEY, the Indian chief, who has recently been out to the Snake country, reports that the Snake Indians are determined to join with the Mormons in a war against the Americans. It is also reported that the Clickitats, at the mouth of the White Salmon River, are debating much, of late, in private, giving strong indications that some new plot is being concocted by them. STOCK WHITLEY, for himself and people, still professes the greatest friendship for the Americans."

And the same paper of the 16th has the following very improbable rumor: "There had been a conflict in Salt Lake Valley, between a detachment of the United States troops under command of Col. JOHNSON and a superior force of Mormons. At first, the Mormons routed the troops, but they were afterwards rallied by their officers, and turned upon their pursuers. A hard fight ensued, in which the troops eventually proved victorious. After sustaining severe loss in killed and wounded, the Mormons fled the action."

THE SANDWICH ISLANDS.

A Day of "Fasting and Thanksgiving"—Whalers in Port—New Guano Expedition—A Yankee for Japan.

Our dates from Honolulu are to the 24th of December.

The Polynesian announces a proclamation, by the King, that Thursday, the 31st December, is to be kept as a day of solemn fasting and humiliation for sin, and of thanksgiving to Almighty God for numberless unmerited mercies and blessings received during the year that expires on that day. King KAMEHAMEHA thinks that the people ought to do their fasting and rejoicing on the same day.

The Advertiser says: "The following are all the foreign whalers now in our harbor: Candor, repairing damage done to her bows in the ice in Ochotsk Sea; Isabella, had stepped a new foremast, and is repairing bow; Salamandre, recaulked, and new sheathed bow; Sheffield, ready for sea; Daniel Wood, putting lead on the stem, and recoppering bow; South Seaman, ready for sea; Charles Phelps, refitting; India, awaiting arrival of the Merrimac, when she will exchange captains and sail for home, the Merrimac taking her place in this ocean; Fanny, sails to-day. In three or four weeks all of these vessels will have taken their departure, and the harbor and town will, if possible, be duller than at present for a month or two, or until the Spring season opens."

Judge J. G. MARVIN, formerly of San Francisco, Sacramento and Sonora, died at Honolulu on Dec. 10, of consumption, aged 42 years.

The Advertiser, of latest date, says: "The schooner Caroline E. Foote will be dispatched from Honolulu for a guano island off the coast of Mexico, the precise location of which we have not ascertained. She will endeavor to procure here from forty to sixty Hawaiians to act as laborers in shipping the guano. A company has been formed in San Francisco for the prosecution of this business, under the Presidency of Capt. ISHAM, formerly a commander of one of the Panama steamers."

We take the following from the Polynesian of December 19:

DR. GEORGE M. BATES, of Lahaina, (oldest son of ASHBEL B. BATES, of Honolulu,) intends, within a few days, to sail for Hakodadi, in Japan, where he expects to establish himself as a physician and surgeon, taking with him everything necessary to the practice of his profession, and for supplying ships' medicine chests. We notice this fact with an interest enhanced on account of the numerous whaleships cruising within a moderate distance of Dr. BATES' new location, thus affording an opportunity, in case of casualties to life or limb, of consulting, without a great loss of time, a thorough bred physician and surgeon. Dr. BATES is a pupil of Dr. Z. Pitcher, of Detroit, and attended medical lectures at the University of Michigan; he afterwards studied under Professor WILLARD PARKER, of New-York City, and graduated at the "College of Physicians and Surgeons of the New-York State University," and during his residence in both Detroit and New-York, was a daily attendant at the various hospitals. The Doctor's grandmother was the second white woman settled in the then wilderness of the West, beyond the Cayuga lakes, in the State of New-York; his father was brought up in "the heart of the Pacific," and the Doctor himself takes the newly-opened shores of Japan for his future residence.

THE WEST INDIES.

Adjournment of the Jamaica Legislature—A Baltimore Quakeress Lecturing—Mixing—Slavers—African Immigrants at Martinique.

We have received files of Kingston, Jamaica, papers to the 1st inst.

The Legislature of the Island adjourned on the 31st of December. In his speech the Governor expresses the hope that the depression of the markets under which the principal staple of the Colony labors at this particular moment, may prove to be only the inevitable but temporary effect of the financial crisis, whereby the commercial States of Europe and America have all been more or less affected.

Governor DARLING is very popular among all classes of the inhabitants of Jamaica.

Much excitement had been created in Kingston by the announcement that a Quakeress, SUSAN FREDERICKS by name, from Baltimore, would lecture in the Wesleyan Church. Such large crowds attended that SUSAN was unable to gain a hearing. She left Kingston, next day, on a tour through the country, for the purpose of observing the character and condition of the people—so as to be able to report on her return home on the result of emancipation in the West Indies.

Recruiting for native regiments was going on briskly, to the disgust of planters, whose great want is labor.

The Kingston Journal had been informed by a gentleman possessing an excellent knowledge of all matters appertaining to mining, that at the Mount Salus Mine, two miles beyond the property of the Ellerslie and Bardowie Mining Company, they struck upon one of the richest lodes of copper that had been seen since operations have commenced in the district.

The Press of the Island are unanimous in the opinion that during the past year there has been great improvement in the general affairs of the country.

The Cornwall Chronicle in a late issue, says: It has come to our knowledge that no less than three slavers had, during the month of December, called in at George Town, Grand Caymanas, the principal harbor in the island; they had called under the pretence of being whalers, for supplies, as well as for fitting out what they might be deficient of. The inhabitants did not learn the exact character of these vessels till within a few days of sailing, and they were allowed to depart.

Later advices had been received from the French West Indies. Preparatorily to the arrival at Martinique of the first batch of African immigrants recruited by the REGIS firm, notice had been given by the Government of the rates to be paid on their introduction. Before delivery, the parties engaging to employ them are required to pay down a premium equal to £8 per adult, and £6 per non-adult. There will be paid from the immigration fund £4 per adult and £2 per non-adult, as a definite expenditure; and £8 per adult to be reimbursed by the employers in three equal yearly installments; £4 per non-adult, to be reimbursed in two similar installments; and £2 for each infant accompanying its mother, to be reimbursed at the end of one year. The allotment of immigrants to one estate is limited to twenty out of one importation.

In the Corps Législatif, on the opening of the session of the General Council of Martinique, he uses the following words: "Recent information, however, permits us to hope that the recruiting of Asiatics will henceforth be effected on a greatly extended scale; while, on the other hand, African immigration is being experimented, and, by the aid of the transports employed by the REGIS firm, must soon place you in a position to appreciate the worth of this new element of labor. There is reason, therefore, to foresee that before long a much greater stream of immigration will be turned upon the colony, and it is prudent to bear in mind the sacrifice necessary to meet it."

In the matter of the application of the Mayor, &c., in relation to the opening of a public place between Fifty-ninth and One Hundred and Sixth-streets.—Report of referee confirmed.

COURT OF SPECIAL SESSIONS—FEB. 13.
Before Justices Osborn and Connolly.

There were only 44 cases on the calendar, of which 23 were prison cases, 16 bail cases, and 7 suspended cases.

Mary Spencer was arraigned on a charge of assault and battery, preferred against her by Ellen Gorten, of No. 587 First-avenue. The complainant alleged that the prisoner "struck deponent with her fist, and tried to set fire to deponent with a lighted candle." (Feb 8.) It appears Ellen was fighting with Mary's husband, and Mary only tried to separate them. The husband, the complainant said, was intoxicated. Witness—A man that 's drunk 's to be excused. Counsel—What? Witness—Yes, sir, certainly.—The witness enlarged upon the injuries she had received, at great length. Witness—She wanted to roast the eyes out of me. Judge Osborn—She did? Discharge her.

Patrick McFallon, Patrick Duffy, and Robert Hunter, were charged with an assault and battery on James Pitzpatrick, of No. 71 Barclay-street, Jan. 23. The affray occurred in a bar-room. Fitzpatrick gave his testimony, and then another witness was placed on the stand. Judge Osborn—Did you see Fallon strike Fitzpatrick? Witness—Yes sir. Judge Connolly—Did he knock him down? Witness—No, Sir, he didn't knock him down, but— Judge Connolly—Did he bleed him? Witness—Well, yes, Sir, I saw him all bloody. Judge Connolly—Where did he hit him? Witness—He hit him in the face. Counsel—Well, now, didn't he just put his hand in his face to shove him back, and keep him from fighting? Witness—Put his hand in his face? He struck him. He wasn't fighting; he was trying to keep the others from fighting. A number of witnesses were called for the defence. Judge Connolly—Oh, there's no doubt that there was a bar-room row. We find him guilty, and fine him $8. The prisoner couldn't pay it, and was taken into prison.

Frederick Peltz, it was alleged, went to the residence of Frederick Stoltz, Feb. 11, and committed a violent assault and battery upon him. Witnesses for the prosecution, all Germans, were examined through an interpreter, and substantiated the charge. Judge Osborn—Has he got any witnesses? Interpreter—No, Sir. He (prisoner) has got a warrant against him (complainant.) Judge Osborn—Has he got a warrant against him? Interpreter—No. he's got a warrant against another man. Judge Osborn—Oh, well. He's got no witnesses; we must find him guilty. This is a double offence. He commited an assault and battery on this man, and set the dog on him. Fine him $10.

John Kelly had committed an assault and battery, (Jan. 23.) on Adam McGuire, of No. 48 Rosevelt-street. The latter had him arrested by officer Seaman, of the Fourth Precinct Police, and preferred a complaint against him, alleging that he knocked him down and kicked him. Kelly was found guilty and sentenced to the Penitentiary for four months.

Nicholas Fisher was arraigned on the complaint of Margaret Kranz, of No. 264 Third-avenue. Margaret said he tried to get into her room, the door of which she had locked, Feb. 9. She would not let him in, and he broke the glass in the window, a piece of which flew into her eye, injuring her severely. Another witness for the prosecution was examined who said Fisher and Kranz had a quarrel of which she (witness) was the cause, and relate I minutely the circumstances of the quarrel, finally relating that the prisoner broke the glass, as stated by the complainant. Judge Osborn—And that's the amount of it. He broke the glass of the window, and it happened to hit her in the face. (To the prisoner)—Have you got any witnesses? Prisoner—Yes, Sir; I got three. Judge Osborn—Let's have one or two of 'em.—A witness for the defence said there was another woman present at the time of the difficulty. First Witness—(Springing up)—Oh, no there wasn't; I don't lie; there wasn't no other. Judge Connolly—That'll do, that'll do. Judge Osborn—We find him guilty, and fine him $5.

Mary Farlow was accused of assaulting and beating Eliza Jones, of No. 63 Ridge-street, Feb. 9. Complainant—She struck my younger sister. Judge Connolly—No matter about your younger sister. Complainant—She struck my younger sister, and struck me twice with a broomstick.—A man who saw the occurrence was placed on the stand. Witness—I heered de hoiler, you know, I heered de hoiler, and then I saw 'em come at her with a broomstick, brooms and broomsticks. They called her "Dutchie! Dutchie!" I don't know what for they called her "Dutchie."—A little girl was called as a witness for the defence. Witness—She (prisoner) was sweeping out the room, and they called her "Dutchie," and lifted their hands to strike her, and she didn't know what to do, and she lifted her hand too, and they threw water over her and over me too, and then she took water too, and— Judge Osborn—That'll do, that'll do. Discharge her.

Ellen Keating stole a shawl worth $2 from Mark Conway, No. 10 Downing-street, Feb. 9. Officer Miller arrested her for it, and the Court found her guilty and sentenced her to the Penitentiary for two months.

Lydia Ellis pleaded guilty to a charge of petit larceny preferred against her by George Herst. Her counsel said she was intoxicated when she committed the offence, and that she had reformed. Judge Osborn—Well, what do you say, Judge Connoily? Judge Connolly—Well, I'm always disposed to aid persons who are inclined to reform. She pleads guilty. We'll suspend sentence this time, but (to the prisoner) if you're ever brought up here again on any charge, we'll sentence you on this.

Wm. O'Neil, a hackman, was charged with stealing a trunk which belonged to William B. Moneghan. It seems O'Neil charged Moneghan more fare than he was entitled to for carrying him a specified distance in his hack, and when the complainant refused to pay it the prisoner seized his trunk and detained it. The complainant did not appear. Judge Osborn—Well, this man ought to be punished. These men make it a practice to steal in this way. They keep old hacks and make them an excuse for stealing people's trunks. Remand him. He'll keep another week, I guess.

Mary Mahoney brought to the bar charged with beating a child named Catherine Sullivan, who was employed by her as a servant. The child was so badly injured that it was taken to the Hospital. The case was sent to the General Sessions at the request of counsel, Judge Connolly—Seeing that child, as I did, in the Hospital I feel as if I couldn't try this case. For, of all the cases of sickness I ever saw that was the worst. Counsel—Well, there are two sides to the question.

John Coyle, previously convicted of an assault and battery upon Officer George W. Derbent, (Jan. 18,) was brought to the bar and sentence suspended.

James Hogan was charged by George Hoffman, of No. 366 Washington-street, with stealing a coonskin robe, worth $12, from him, (Feb. 11) He was tried, convicted and sentenced to the Penitentiary for two months.

Ann McCoun was arraigned on the complaint of Mary Ann Jones, of No. 547 Eighth-avenue, who charged her with stealing (Feb. 10) three shirts and a quantity of ladies' wearing apparel and under-clothing, all worth $10. Officer Lawrence arrested the prisoner. She was found guilty and sentenced to the Penitentiary for three months.

Sales 200 half bales Mocha (the first lot of the kind sold here during many months), at 17c.; 650 bags Rio at 9½c @ 11½c., and 70 bags Maracaibo at 11¼c @ 11¾c. ₱ lb. We quote Java at 16½c.@17c.; Maracaibo at 10¼c.@13c.; Rio, at 8¾c.@11½c.; Bahia at 9c @9¾c.; and St. Domingo, at 8¾c @9c. ₱ lb. In New-Orleans, last week, Rio Coffee was actively inquired for, and the sales amounted to 11,831 bags, embracing 454 (Skinnings) at 7c.@8c.; 583 at 8¼c.; 4,678 at 9c.@10c.; 1,206 at 9c.; 1,037 at 9¼c.; 678 at 9¾c.; 293 at 9¾c.; 2,136 at 10c.; 706 at 10¼c., and 50 at 10½c. Lonsdale's Weekly Statement sets down the stock at 43,989 bags, (36,474 in first hands, and 7,515 in second hands,) against 77,545 at the corresponding date last year. The market closed at 9c. for ordinary, 9½c. for fair, and 10c.@10¾c. for good fair to prime, showing an advance since last Friday of ¼c. Imports since July 1: Direct, 145,937 bags; coastwise, 9,175; total, 155,112, against 238,991 to the same date last year.

COPPER—American Ingot is in active request, including Lake Superior, at 22c., cash, ₱ lb. Other kinds are quiet, but stiffly held.

COTTON—Exhibits less activity and less buoyancy. Sales were reported of only about 1,200 bales, in lots, including Middling, at 12c.@12¼c. for Upland, and 12¾c.@12¾c. for Gulf, ₱ lb.

FIRE CRACKERS—Canton, 40 packages first quality, have been purchased to a fair extent at $1 50 ₱ box.

FLOUR AND MEAL—State and Western Flour is less freely offered, and being in fair request, prices favor factors. Sales 8,400 bar els.

The Chicago Press adds: "As there are ten vessels in the river with cargoes on board, averaging probably 13,000 bushels each, or 130,000 bushels in all, it is safe to say there are a million bushels of wheat in store and afloat here at present."

HAY—Sales 750 bales North River at 66c.@70c. cash, ₱ 100 lbs. In Baltimore, during the week, there has been a good deal of loose, with but very little bale Hay offering; the market, however, was rather dull. Hay was selling at $14@$15 for baled, and $10@$12 ₱ ton for loose; and Straw at $13@$15 for Rye, and ⅌@$10 ₱ ton for Wheat.

HEMP—Continues quiet and nominal. In St. Louis, during the week ending Feb. 10, sales transpired of only 87 bales common to good at $75@$80 ₱ ton. Stock in warehouse there, estimated at 4,500 bales.

HOPS—The demand is limited at steady prices. Crop of 1857, 5c.@10c., crop of 1856, at 2c.@3c. ₱ lb.

IRON—Continues quiet, but is firmly held. In Philadelphia, during the week, sales have been reported of about 1,200 tons Anthracite

To Correspondents.

We are constantly in the receipt of communications purporting to state important facts, but entirely unfit for use. We must repeat that, for reasons of evident propriety, anonymous communications conveying information will, under no circumstances, RECEIVE ANY ATTENTION WHATEVER. We must have such evidence as the writer's name and address may afford of the truth of his statements;—as a matter of course, they are always considered confidential.

We cannot undertake to return manuscripts that may be sent to us for publication.

Voluntary correspondence, containing important news, from all parts of the world, solicited. If used, it will be liberally paid for.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The Royal Mail steamship Niagara, from Liverpool on the 30th of January, arrived at Halifax yesterday, bringing three days' later news from Europe, a week's later news from India, and intelligence from China to Dec. 16. Parliament was to assemble on the 4th inst. Heavy drafts of troops were under orders to embark for India. The Bank of England, the day before the Niagara sailed, further reduced its rate of discount to four per cent., but the reduction seems to have had little or no effect on the Money Market. From India the news is interesting, though not specially important. A telegram had been received from Malta, announcing the arrival of the Bombay mail, with intelligence that Sir J. OUTRAM, on the 22d of of December, attacked the mutineers at Alumbagh, and defeated them with but trifling loss, capturing four guns. Sir COLIN CAMPBELL was at Ferukabad, and was expected to move westward in a shorttime with a powerful force. From China the news is important. YEH had returned an insolent and sarcastic answer to the ultimatum of the English and French Plenipotentiaries, and the combined attack on Canton was expected to take place in a very short time. The demands of Lord ELGIN are represented to have been of the most temperate character. Previous to the receipt of YEH'S answer, the American Commissioner, Mr. REED, solicited an interview with him in the city, and YEH replied in the most insolent manner that no barbarian should set foot within the limits of Canton, but offered to meet him outside the city. The late attempt on the life of the Emperor continued to be the all-absorbing topic in France. Addresses from the Army were received in great numbers, some of them characterized by the strongest language. The Army of the line is to be divided into five great commands, to be stationed at Paris, Nancy, Lyons, Toulouse and Tours. A plot against the life of the King of Naples is also said to have been discovered, in which ten Frenchmen are implicated. A variety of other interesting intelligence will be found in our dispatch from Halifax.

The Vanderbilt steamship North Star arrived at this port on Saturday, bringing London papers of the 27th of January—one day later than those received by the Indian or City of Baltimore. A rather important meeting of New-York and Erie bondholders was held in London on the 26th ult. Mr. MORAN, who had recently arrived in England from this country, was introduced to the meeting as the new President of the line, and he made some interesting remarks, which will be found elsewhere, on its resources and responsibilities. The presents to the Princess Royal, on the occasion of her marriage, are described as being most gorgeous and superb.

The steamship Star of the West arrived at this port on Saturday afternoon with the California mail of Jan. 20, and over $1,300,000 in treasure. The California Legislature met on the 4th ult., and Governor JOHNSON, the retiring Executive, sent in a long Message. On the 8th Gov. WELLER was inaugurated, and delivered a brief address, which has been very well received throughout the whole State. A Fugitive Slave Bill had been introduced in the Legislature, and also resolutions indorsing the policy of Senator DOUGLAS on the Kansas question. Both the political and general intelligence by this steamer is interesting. From Oregon there is a report that the Snake Indians had joined the Mormons, and also another very unreliable rumor that a battle had been fought between the latter and the United States troops. From the Sandwich Islands we have no news of importance.

Our advices from Great Salt Lake City, by way of California, are interesting. BRIGHAM'S army—supposed to number about 3,000 men—is said to be in good condition. It is reported that five American gentlemen, whose names have not been ascertained, were lately murdered by the Indians about 100 miles South of Salt Lake, and it is suspected that the Saints had some hand in the massacre. It seems that about the 28th of August last, these American gentlemen left Carson Valley and traveled to Salt Lake in company with the Mormons who quitted the Valley by order of BRIGHAM YOUNG. The excitement in California in regard to a Mormon war is still kept up, and volunteer companies are being organized over the whole State. The extracts which we publish elsewhere from harangues delivered by some of the Apostles and Saints will be found extremely spicy.

Two weeks later intelligence from South America is received by the Star of the West. One LOMER had been arrested in Lima on the charge of conspiring to bring 400 Americans to Peru to fight for ECHENIQUE, but the story is generally disbelieved. Nothing worthy of note had occurred in Peru to change the prospects of the combatants. A fight of five hours duration is reported to have taken place between the adherents of CASTILLA and VIVANCO, and only one or two lives were lost. Chili is suffering from the effects of a severe monetary pressure, and Bolivia seems to be at peace, and satisfied, for once, with its present Executive. There is scarcely any news from New-Granada. Our Panama correspondent does not believe that the Cass-Herran treaty will meet with the approbation of President OSPINA.

Congress was not in session on Saturday, and the State Legislature did very little of general interest. Our dispatches give some interesting information relative to the Lecompton movements.

The third meeting of the Committee of the Board of Councilmen, deputed to investigate the predicament of the Comptroller's department, was held on Saturday in the City Hall library. Mr. FLAGG was reëxamined by the Chairman, Councilman GENET. He stated that three other cases of irregularity had come to light, in the formation of the contracts for regulating Fifty-fifth and Fifty-sixth streets, and also in one for the Sixth-avenue; in each of these Mr. FARLEY'S name occurred. Mr. FLAGG testified that several suspicious entries had been discovered in the contracts for 1857, but he could not speak very positively, inasmuch as the books had not been sufficiently examined. Investigations, under his direction, were in progress. About $15,000 would cover the newly-discovered frauds. He thought that ultimately the City would lose nothing on the transaction in which J. B. SMITH is involved, as undoubtedly the money would be recovered. Mr. FLAGG handed to the Chairman specifications of a somewhat lengthy character, illustrating the nature of these contracts, and what had been paid upon them, after which the Committee adjourned to Saturday next.

The Island Hospital, on the Southern end of Blackwell's Island, was burned to the ground early on Saturday morning. There were about 550 persons—officers and patients,—in the building when the alarm was given, all of whom succeeded in making good their escape. The fire was discovered at 3½ o'clock A. M., in the kitchen of the central building, occupied by the Resident Physician and assistants, and spread rapidly to the two wings. A high wind from the northwest prevailed, the night was bitter cold, and the efforts of the officers and the convicts,—about thirty of the latter were employed in passing water to the burning building,—were unavailing. By 8 o'clock the Hospital was entirely consumed. The loss to the City is about $100,000, and is not covered by insurance.

A young Frenchman named VINCENT CHOVEY came to his death on Saturday by taking overdoses of morphine, administered by RICHARD ROCKE, a drug clerk. The clerk, who was a room-mate of deceased, gave him the deadly drug (without weighing it) to allay excessive pains caused by inflammatory rheumatism. The Coroner made an examination of the case, and the Jury exonerated the clerk.

On Saturday night, a little after 6 o'clock, Mr. GEORGE H. SIMONSON was attacked by a party of rowdies, at the door of STEPHEN STORY'S Saloon, on Pierrepont, near Fulton-street, Brooklyn, and so badly injured that he died yesterday morning. PATRICK LALLY, who, it is supposed, gave the mortal blow, was yesterday arrested and committed to answer. Last evening the citizens of Brooklyn held a meeting, at Gothic Hall, when a Vigilance Committee was appointed, to see that the accused is brought to trial, and to devise some means to protect peaceable citizens from such outrages.

D. WEMYSS JOBSON was arrested on Saturday, on a complaint of libel entered by Dr. JOHN ALLEN, dentist in Bond-street, charged with uttering libelous placards, and publishing slanderous attacks upon him in the Herald. Mr. JOBSON gave bail for $1,000 to answer the charge before the Court of General Sessions.

The adjourned investigation of the Finance Committee of the Board of Councilmen into the affairs of the Comptroller's Department took place on Saturday. Three new cases came to light, upon which investigations are still in progress.

The deaths in the City last week numbered 443—six more than the week preceding—but five more than for the corresponding week of last year. Small-pox caused 21 deaths. There is no epidemic prevailing in the City. We hear of a good deal of scarlet fever and whooping-cough, but it is generally of a mild type.

The General Markets, on Saturday, closed with less vigor for Cotton. Flour was in fair demand, and it slightly advanced. Corn was also pretty freely purchased, at firmer prices. Other kinds of grain were inactive, at about previous quotations. Groceries attracted less attention, yet they were unchanged in value. Provisions were in request, and prices favored factors. Freights were quiet, shipowners having slightly advanced their claims. The number of vessels of all classes in port was 557.

The State Auditor.

The Albany Evening Journal announces that Gov. KING has decided not to reappoint Mr. N. S. BENTON to be Auditor of the Canal Department. Mr. BENTON'S "ability and integrity are conceded;" but, says the Journal:

"Gov. KING represents the Republican Party. In disposing of the most important and desirable office in his gift, he does not feel at liberty to bestow it upon a gentleman whose life-long political principles, associations and sympathies have been adverse, and who, in November last, was the candidate of another party, for Comptroller. Not even the strong considerations of expediency which suggested and pressed this appointment could reconcile the Governor to depart from a course which he deems essential to the strength and harmony of political action. The Governor will, we doubt not, nominate a Republican for Auditor who possesses all the qualifications which we concede to Col. BENTON. The State, therefore, will lose nothing by the change.

We should have been entirely satisfied, we repeat, with the renomination of Col. BENTON; and the more so, after the "American" members of the House bargained with the Democracy. But the Governor could not bring his mind to that view of the question, and it is due to him to say that his determination evinces the fidelity of a Republican with the firmness of a Statesman."

Statesmanship now-a-days means little more than fidelity to party. The political incidents of every day,—in State and federal governments alike,—prove that all other considerations yield to this. We believe this is the only country in the world in which all the offices of the Government, high and low, political and clerical, are regarded as the spoils of party,—in which all considerations of the public good are inexorably and remorselessly sacrificed to the success of party.

We have nothing to say against Gov. KING'S decision in regard to the Canal Auditor. We concede that as such things go, he could not have acted differently. Retention of a political opponent in any office, however humble, would undoubtedly have been regarded as treachery to party obligations, and would have been resented accordingly. The ablest and most distinguished Democrat in the Union, is unceremoniously ejected from the party by the Executive fiat, because he cannot imitate the Executive agility in reversing his position and waging war upon his own principles. The leading Republican Senator,—the man who has done more than any other in the Union to organize the Republican Party, is denounced by his former friends for venturing to declare that he will never sacrifice the public good to the success of his party. Gov. KING may certainly be excused for avoiding a fate which neither DOUGLAS nor SEWARD could escape.

We cannot agree with the Journal in thinking that the State will "lose nothing" by a change in the Auditorship. That office is peculiarly one of detail, and its usefulness depends entirely upon the familiarity of the incumbent with the minute and numberless particulars of each specific case on which he is called to act. One Auditor may save the State hundreds of thousands of dollars more than another, of equal ability and integrity, merely because he is more intimately acquainted with the details of his office. The State will, therefore, lose the experience of Mr. BENTON in making a change; and it is a loss which cannot easily be repaired. The Government has rarely had a more faithful, or more effective public servant than he.

A SPECIMEN OF MODERN CHIVALRY.—The tactics of the model specimens of Southern chivalry are sometimes so curiously ingenious as to repay careful and attentive study. The great Keitt fight in the House offers several points from which very interesting and instructive observations may be taken. Mr. KEITT, for example, is exceedingly anxious to hold somebody responsible for having said that he was knocked down by Mr. GROW. The noticeable point here is, that he takes no exception to the fact of being knocked down. He makes no issue with the man who did it, but seeks another with somebody who may mention the occurrence.

The Richmond South, in a letter from Washington, gives the following illustration of a similar dodge on the part of Mr. BARKSDALE, whose loss of his wig was one of the most exciting incidents of the affair:

"After all the uproar and confusion of the rencontre had subsided, and order been completely restored, Mr. BARKSDALE, of Mississippi, than whom no more dauntless spirit breathes, walked quietly to the seat of Mr. WASHBURNE, of Illinois, and said in an ordinary tone, 'I understand, Sir, that you deny having struck me.' 'Indeed I did not strike you, Sir,' anxiously replied Mr. WASHBURNE. 'Then, Sir,' said Mr. BARKSDALE, speaking all the time in a quiet, cool undertone, 'I pronounce you to be an infamous liar.' The honorable free-soiler had no reply to make to this, and Mr. BARKSDALE turned quietly away."

Here, it will be noticed, Mr. BARKSDALE admits that he was struck by Mr. WASHBURNE: he denies in the most explicit manner the report that he was not struck. But he takes no exception to it. A blow, to this "dauntless spirit," seems to have been no cause of offence. He calls nobody to an account for having struck him. He very quietly pockets that indignity,—indeed, he struts about with it and makes the most ostentatious display of it possible. But when Mr. WASHBURNE denied having struck him, then comes the occasion for the display of Mr. BARKSDALE'S chivalry. Upon that he pronounces Mr. WASHBURNE an "infamous liar." And the South affects astonishment that Mr. W. did not challenge him upon the spot. If a man takes a confessed blow so quietly as Mr. BARKSDALE did, it can scarcely be expected that much notice should be taken of what he says.

Kansas and the Academy.

Mr. GEORGE B. BUTLER, in a card published in the TIMES of Saturday morning, states that on Thursday evening, after an interview with three of the Directors of the Academy of Music, he was informed by Mr. TUNISON, the agent in charge of the building, who had just seen Mr. H. A. COIT, the President of the Board, that the house should be warmed and lighted, and that he could have possession of it for the purpose of the Anti-Lecompton meeting on Friday night. It was upon the strength of this statement that he assured the public through the Press, on Friday morning, that the objections of the Directors had been overcome, and that the meeting would be held.

Mr. BUTLER'S statement had not appeared when we wrote the paragraph in the TIMES of Saturday morning. Thus far it stands uncontradicted, and while it exonerates Mr. BUTLER from censure, it leaves the Directors of the Academy in a position where self-respect should compel an explanation of their apparent extraordinary violation of their own engagement. Mr. BUTLER states explicitly that TUNISON promised, after an interview with Mr. COIT, to give him possession of the building, that Mr. TUNISON warmed and partially lighted it for the purpose, and that, at the last moment, by order of Messrs. R. L. CUTTING and P. C. SCHUYLER, he refused to comply with the engagement, and closed the doors. Unless these gentlemen are content to submit in silence to the imputations of Mr. BUTLER'S card, they will probably gratify the public by some explanation of the matter.

We also mentioned, on Saturday, that it had been stated that, when Mr. BUTLER engaged the Academy, on Monday evening, it was for the ostensible purpose of a lecture, and that upon reading the announcement of the real object of the meeting in the papers of Friday morning, permission was withdrawn. In reference to this matter, the receipt itself, dated on Friday afternoon, and reading as follows, is conclusive:

"Received, New-York, Feb. 9, 1858, from Mr. GEO. B. BUTLER, $300 for the rent of the Academy of Music for the night of Feb. 12, to be used for an Anti-Lecompton meeting. JAMES T. TUNISON, for B. ULLMAN."

It is but just to Mr. BUTLER to say that his explanations of the affair, so long as they are unimpeached, fully justified him in supposing that the use of the building would be granted as originally stipulated, and that he was warranted in so assuring the public.

Abolishing Women.

Dr. HARRIOTT K. HUNT is, much to her own regret, a woman. She is by profession a physician, and resides in Boston.

Dr. HUNT is one of the dozen women in the United States who pine because Nature did not make them men. This unfortunate circumstance is the standing grievance of their lives. What avail the privileges, immunities, attentions, and advantages accorded to them by the gallantry of the rougher sex, so long as they may not go to Congress, enlist in the militia, be watchmen and constables, wear pantaloons, or even vote?

Impressed with an indignant sense of these disabilities, Mrs. Dr. HUNT is seeking legislative relief. Unlike her compatriot, LUCY STONE, she does not despise the power of the State, or altogether refuse to pay her taxes. She brings her case before the Legislature of Massachusetts. That body has appointed a joint Select Committee to consider and report whether or no Dr. HARRIOTT and the rest of womankind shall be admitted to the ballot-box. This Committee, as we learn from the Boston papers, has held a public hearing in the State House, where Dr. HUNT "expressed her disgust at the freedom allowed to men to vote, while women are debarred the privilege." In this "disgust" she was ably sustained by Hon. SAMUEL E. SEWALL and WENDELL PHILLIPS. The Committee listened patiently, and appointed another day when it will listen still more.

Mrs. Dr. HUNT mistakes the best way to approach the object she has in view. Instead of demanding the privilege of suffrage, which she would not care for after she had it, she should go at once to the root of the matter. Let her demand the passage of a bill in the following words:

"Be it enacted, That all women shall become men; this act to take effect immediately."

Nothing short of such a comprehensive and thorough proceeding will answer the expectations of Dr. HUNT and her small band of female reformers.

Nevertheless we will not promise to support the measure. To confess the truth, we do not wish to see women abolished. We would rather not do without them. If they were all like Dr. HUNT and LUCY STONE we might think differently. But the softer sex, we are free to say it, seems to us worth preserving as it is. We therefore call upon the Massachusetts Legislature to exercise a judicious conservatism. What would become of us if there were no women?

SPIRITUALISTS' BALL AND LEVEE.—Dancing succeeds Rapping. The Spiritualists of Charlestown, Mass., treated themselves to a Ball, at Washington Hall, in that city, on Wednesday evening last. One hundred couples assembled on the occasion. There was singing by the MYERS sisters, and other, the like, exercises, after which came a supper. At 10 o'clock dancing commenced, which continued till 2.

Now this is an improvement upon the former practices of the sect. How much better to have a song, a supper, and a dance, than to listen in the dark to women thumping with their toes.

The Rapping mystery is one of the extraordinary things of the day. Not the rapping itself, which is simple enough, but the fact that anybody should believe that spirits had an agency in it. That is the miracle. When we consider that tens of thousands, in this day of boasted light, place confidence in that shallowest of impostures, it behooves us to think charitably of those who burnt witches, and even of BRIGHAM YOUNG'S deluded followers. The history of Rapping is curious enough to be written in full. Not that we propose to become its historian; but one fact may be mentioned as suggestive. The heel and the toe exercise of the Spiritualists is always performed under the cover of petticoats. No pantaloomed creature ever attempted it. The spirits select their mediums with discretion. Their preference is for women exclusively; and for this partiality to the sex they have their reasons. Whether it will survive the era of long dresses we do not certainly know, though we have our opinion.

A Warning to Critics.

Rev. SIDNEY SMITH, in his capacity of Edinburgh Reviewer, once refused to read a certain book, unless the author could procure an act of Parliament compelling him to do so. This was a noble example of respect for the laws and institutions of society, and we are pleased to see that it has not been altogether thrown away upon the world. For Mr. DENNIS MCMAHON, of this City, by profession an attorney, and the husband of a lady who aspires to the useful but difficult office of regenerating the public stage, has taken a hint from the Canon of St. Paul's, and in a letter, which we elsewhere publish, informs the "dramatical critics" of this City that if they do not justly appreciate the talents and the acting of his wife, he will enforce upon them a due enlightenment by strenuous applications of the criminal law.

The idea, when exhibited in this precise form, assumes a delightful novelty, and we do not doubt that the public will accord to Mr. MCMAHON all the credit which he so justly deserves. It occurs to us, however, who naturally contemplate this projected reform with eyes less blinded by enthusiasm than those of its philanthropic authors, that the language of the Revised Statutes of New-York is less explicit in regard to the offence of inadequate or inaccurate criticism than it should be, and we beg Mr. MCMAHON to lose no time in suggesting such a proper modification of the sections which treat of this subject as shall leave no loophole of escape to the indolent and the ill-disposed. The Legislature is still in session, and as there seems to be no probability that they will take any action whatever on any other question, there will doubtless be no difficulty in inducing the Conscript Fathers to provide some fitting punishment for the offenders upon whom Mr. MCMAHON has fixed his fatal eye. We are very sure that the public would willingly see any penalty inflicted upon them short of some such cruel, unusual and unconstitutional torment as would be involved, for instance, in a law requiring them to read one another's criticisms, or to criticize fairly one another's plays.

SINGULAR RESULT OF A TRIAL FOR MURDER.—The trial of ISAAC L. WOOD, at Geneseo, New-York, on an indictment for murdering RHODA WOOD, his brother's wife, by poison, came to a conclusion on Wednesday, after occupying the Oyer and Terminer for six days. The Jury were unable to find a verdict. Eleven were for conviction, but the twelfth, a Mr. MOSES LONG, would not concur, because he had conscientious scruples respecting the death penalty! A strong feeling of indignation prevailed in Geneseo at the conduct of LONG, as the public in that vicinity were convinced of the prisoner's guilt. The excitement in the village and county is represented as greater than had been witnessed for many years before.

WOOD is under another indictment for the murder of his brother. Mr. MOSES LONG must be a philanthropist of the most practical school thus to remain upon a jury six days in order that his "conscientious scruples" might come in at the last moment to rescue a murderer from the gallows.

THE MORMONS GROWING PACIFIC.—A variety of unreliable rumors concerning the Mormons and their doings reach us by every California mail. These reports are generally to the effect that the United States troops have been cut up by a large body of Mormons. We see that some such statements have been again circulated by the San Francisco papers, but they are not worthy of the slightest credit. The fact is that the case is quite the reverse. According to present appearances there is little danger of an actual collision between BRIGHAM'S troops and the United States soldiers. If we take as an index of their views the more recent harangues of the Saints we will find them almost pacific in tone and spirit. Whether the change has been caused by fear or by policy we know not; but certain it is that BRIGHAM, when he now speaks in the Tabernacle, is neither so loud in his boasts nor so virulent in his abuse. He is even to be found advocating pacific measures. The extracts which we publish elsewhere from some of his speeches and those of other Mormon celebrities will be found especially interesting.

Personal.

Hon. EDWARD EVERETT has just been elected a Foreign Corresponding member of the Academy of Moral and Political Sciences in the Institute of France. The actual Foreign Associates of this Academy, which is the fifth, in point of date, of the divisions of the Institute, having been refounded by LOUIS PHILLIPPE in 1832, are five in number, of whom two are Americans, the historians PRESCOTT and BANCROFT, and three Englishmen, Lord BROUGHAM, Mr. HENRY HALLAM, and Mr. MCCULLOCH. How many of our countrymen are to be found in the ranks of the 225 foreign correspondents of the Institute, we cannot at this moment recall; but the election of Mr. EVERETT into a body made up with great discrimination and practical judgment is a solid distinction as well as an agreeable compliment.

Letters from Silesia state that the Ducal Castle of Ratibor has just been destroyed by fire. It belonged to Prince Victor de Hohenlohe, Duke of Ratibor and Prince of Corney. This nobleman, who is the only subject of the ducal rank in Prussia, distinguished himself in 1850 by coming to Berlin to plead for the Silesian Salt tax imposed by the nobles upon the people as a "right conferred by Nature and guaranteed by God."

THE WEATHER.—Saturday was a blustering day. The air was cold and biting, and the wind blew in gusts. Ladies of expansive crinoline found difficulty in making headway against the breezes, or were borne along more rapidly than pleased them, when they and the wind came from the same quarter. Volumes of dust were rolled up like smoke from the dirty streets, and every one's eyes and nostrils and mouths contained miniature deserts. When night came the sky was cloudy, and the weather-wise prognosticated a storm. Saturday night it commenced snowing, and all day Sunday it kept it up; but when it ceased at night-fall the ground was barely covered by a thin winding-sheet, and then the stars came out and the Heavens looked blue, and the weather to-day is—what we all perceive it to be.

A CURIOSITY—We saw, on Saturday, a green cucumber, eighteen inches long, picked from the vines on Friday, in Colonel COLT'S green-house, at Hartford, Conn., and sent by his gardener, Mr. STEBBINS, to a gentleman in this City.

INTERESTING FROM WASHINGTON.

The Democrats Caucusing for Lecompton.

Probable Attempt to Force a Vote in the Senate.

Attempted Compromise—Chances Against its Success—Calhoun Sticks to Delaware Crossing, &c.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, Feb. 14.

At the Democratic caucus last night, only thirty attended. A resolution was adopted, appointing a Committee to consider what can be done for the salvation of Lecompton and the party, to report on Wednesday night, to which time the caucus adjourned.

It is rumored that an effort will be made in the Senate to establish the previous question, and so force an early vote on the Kansas question, and cut short the exposition of the frauds.

The Senate Committee on Territories will not report to-morrow. COLLAMER and WADE will sign one minority report probably, and DOUGLAS another.

CALHOUN openly repudiates the idea now that he will return the Free-State Legislature. He will play the Delaware Crossing game through to the end.

The Anti-Lecompton men are not at all dismayed by the attempts of the Administration to patch up a compromise based upon the proposition that Kansas shall be admitted with a proviso declaring the people's right to change the Constitution immediately, if they choose. While this would be a concession of the charge of fraud or insufficiency in the former election, it has a still stronger element of repugnance to Southern men, in the fact that it would inevitably result in the absolute rejection of Slavery. It is believed that all the South Americans and several Southern Democrats would vote against the admission coupled with such a condition.

I am assured by gentlemen who ought to know that there is no disposition on the part of the Anti-Lecompton Democrats to accept this or any other plan of compromise. It is not believed that more than one of their number can by any possibility be seduced into retiring from their uncompromising hostility to the Lecompton Constitution in any and every event, until it shall have been shown to embody the free will of a majority of the people in all its parts.

In answer to the fear expressed in some quarters, that upon the direct question of the admission or rejection of Kansas, the admission will triumph, it is argued with force that the motion to refer to the Committee on Territories was by far the strongest which the Lecomptonites could ever present. It was urged upon Democratic opponents of the measure that the Territorial Committee would give the charges of fraud a fair investigation, and every possible influence was brought to bear upon them to induce them not to deny the wishes of the Administration upon so simple a proposition.

But all arguments failed, and it is difficult to see how any man who refused to sustain the Administration on that occasion can possibly change his front now. Such instability would afford further prima facie evidence of the truth of the declarations made by correspondents of certain Southern presses, to the effect that the Executive was prepared to carry the scheme by Executive bribery and corruption.

Besides, the Democrats who kicked out of the party traces, on the motion to refer, know perfectly well that they have no future position, except by success in the movement which they have initiated. If they should turn back now, they would assuredly be used and then spurned,—forgiveness and restoration of confidence are out of the question. But if they stand firm in their present position, they are sure of success; and then the Douglas Democracy will be the Power in the Democratic Party, and they its chief exponents.

On the other hand, if they should yield, they know that henceforth the Democracy of the North will be powerless to bestow substantial honors or rewards. Thus conscience, judgment and interest combine to keep them true to the cause of "Popular Sovereignty" as preached by every man of them in the late campaign.

Instead of Lecompton being stronger upon the direct vote, the opinion of shrewd observers here is that it will be weaker—that several who voted to refer will vote finally to reject—especially if the universally-admitted Kansas frauds are put in unequivocal shape by the packed Committee of Investigation.

The Lecomptonites fear this result,—hence they are determined to crowd the measure to the vote at the earliest day possible. The effort will begin in the Senate, perhaps, to-morrow,—although, in view of the fact that the dangerous illness of his wife has rendered Mr. DOUGLAS unable to have his due share in the proceedings of the Territorial Committee, may cause a brief delay of the report.

Any attempt, however, to crowd the bill through the Senate at once will assuredly be defeated, for no vote can be taken until after a long and earnest debate.

In the House the effort is making to procure a sudden report from the Committee without waiting for the investigation ordered by the House. Such a scheme might succeed if the Administration had an unscrupulous majority of twenty men,—but as the case stands it must fail,—or react against the measure itself.

I repeat, that unless gentlemen who have the reputation of being men of integrity, can be bought like sheep,—or unless Republicans are careless or faithless, the Lecompton scheme will never come as near passing the House as did a reference to the Committee on Territories. S.

WASHINGTON, Saturday, Feb. 13.

The Board appointed by the War Department to examine SHARP'S breech-loading pistols—of a similar construction to the breech-loading carbine—have made a report,—the object being to ascertain how long they could be used without cleaning. After twenty-six shots with the eight-inch, and thirteen with the ten-inch pistol, the movable or sliding breech became so foul as to work with difficulty, and to render further experiment impracticable. Ten shots were fired in one minute.

The Treasurer's statement for the week ending Monday: Receipts nearly $664,000. Amount deposited in New-York upwards of $1,500,000. Subject to draft, $4,439,000. Drafts paid, $1,101,000. For the quarter ending with December: Receipts received into the Treasury from all sources, $7,092,665. Expenditures, $17,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, Feb. 14.

A majority of the Senate Committee on Territories are preparing a report and a bill for the admission of Kansas into the Union under the Lecompton Constitution. They are acting without reference to the question of whether the Free-State or Pro-Slavery party has the Legislature and State officers. In deference to Mr. DOUGLAS, the Chairman of the Committee, who has illness in his family, the report will probably not be made before Thursday, in order to give him time to prepare his dissenting views. Messrs. WADE and COLLAMER will unite in a third report. It is clearly understood that in the event of persistent attempts first to pass the Minnesota State bill, a proposition will be made to unite it with the Kansas measure, that the success of the one may depend upon the passage of the other. Such is the present programme.

A Democratic caucus was held in the Hall of the House of Representatives last night. Mr. JOHN COCHRANE acted as Chairman and Mr. REAGAN as Secretary.

Owing to the snow-storm, the meeting was comparatively small, but all sections of the country were represented. Good feeling generally prevailed. It was a gathering preliminary to more perfect organization, with a view to shaping the business of legislation and of acting understandingly in the future. A Committee of five was directed to be appointed by the Chairman, to consult and advise as to the propriety of calling meetings whenever occasion may require definite plan of action on important public measures.

The debates incidentally involved the Kansas question, but the general sentiment expressed was that the peace and harmony of the Union and States depend on the preservation of the nationality of the Democratic Party.

The Senate caucus also agreed on a plan of action relative to business.

The House Select Committee on Kansas Affairs will hold their first meeting on Monday night.

The President has officially recognized JOSES FREDERICO DARLEY as Consul-General of Uruguay, resident in New-York.

The Union of this morning argues to show that there is no alternative for either the Conservative National men of the North or the representatives of the South but in cordial coöperation with each other, under thoroughly organized national Democracy, based on the broad principles of the Cincinnati resolves, which renders it impossible that the peace of the country can be longer jeopardized by the sectionalists who have been so long in conspiracy against it.

At the suggestion of several Southern gentlemen, the Secretary of the Interior has requested Gen. LUTHER BLAKE, of Georgia, to join Col. RICHEY and Major GARRETT, Indian Agents at Tampa Bay, to aid in effecting the peaceable removal of the Seminoles from Florida.

The General's influence with BILLY BOWLEGS and his tribe, now occupying the everglades of Florida, warrants the belief that ere long they will consent to join their brethren West of the Mississippi.

NEW-YORK LEGISLATURE.

SENATE....ALBANY, Saturday, Feb. 13.

Several petitions were presented, including one by Mr. WADSWORTH, in favor of appropriating the proceeds of the Excise law to the Inebriate Asylum.

Mr. DIVEN reported adversely to the bill to restrict taxation within certain limits. Laid on the table.

Mr. BRANDRETH reported, favorably, to incorporate the Commercial College of Medicine.

BILLS NOTICED.

By Mr. WADSWORTH, to prevent disturbance of burial-grounds.

Three private bills were then passed.

Mr. SMITH moved a resolution of inquiry as to whether any Judges of the Supreme Court have made any charges against the State, aside from their salary, and for what services.

No other business of interest was done.

ASSEMBLY....ALBANY, Saturday, Feb. 13.

Messrs. PARSONS and WEIANT rose to questions of privilege on the assertions in the public papers that their votes on the motion to grant the use of the Assembly Chamber to Ex-Secretary STANTON were a test of their position on the Lecompton question. Mr. PARSONS, who voted negatively, stated that he did so because he regarded it as made a party question by the action of the Republicans in calling for the Yeas and Nays. If "Anti-Lecompton" meant freedom-shrieking and rebellion, then he was for "Lecompton;" and if "Lecompton" meant the immediate admission of Kansas, and the settlement of that question, and the support of BUCHANAN, he was for "Lecompton."

BILLS NOTICED.

By Mr. SHELBY, to abolish the offices of Corporation Counsel and City Judge in New-York.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

By Mr. BEACH, to amend the Brooklyn Charter so as to alter the time for the Mayor's Message, to make it correspond with the amended charter. Also, to amend the revised statutes relative to summary proceedings for the recovery of lands, by giving power to reëntry to landlords when tenants hold over their term, or violate any covenant of their lease.

A number of petitions regarding the North and East River steamers were presented.

BILLS REPORTED FAVORABLY.

To extend the Charter of the Firemen of New-York.

To incorporate the New-York Pure Milk Company.

By Mr. CHAUNCEY, to exempt Brooklyn from certain provisions of the law so as to allow the extension of lines of Railroad.

By Mr. SMITH, to authorize the Board of Engineers of New-York to appoint all bell-ringers.

By Mr. BACHELLER, to make the Health Office of New-York a salaried office to the extent of $8,000 a year and the pay of assistants.

By Mr. LYNCH, relative to the New-York District Courts. This bill vacates the office of clerk and gives the appointment to the Mayor, to be confirmed by the Common Council.

Mr. PLATT moved that the Comptroller report the amount of unpaid appropriations in 1857.

No other business of interest was transacted by the Assembly.

THE HEALTH OFFICER OF NEW-YORK.

Mr. BACHELLER'S bill relative to the Health Officer of New-York, makes the office a salaried one at $8,000 per annum, including all who are employed under him. Prohibits him and his employes from receiving any other fee, emolument or consideration whatsoever, under penalty of punishment for misdemeanor. Provides that he shall collect fees as heretofore, and pay the same into the State Treasury each month. Requires him to file a statement of such fees and Treasury receipt each month with the City Comptroller, and to report annually to the Legislature. Provides for the immediate removal of any officer who shall appropriate any of the money collected as fees. Makes the office an elective one, and provides for the election on the first Tuesday in November next, to commence office on the 1st of January, 1859, and hold for two years.

THE BROOKLYN RAILROADS.

Mr. CHAUNCEY'S bill authorizes the grant to E. C. LITCHFIELD, R. S. TUCKER, and others, of permission to lay a double track on Furman-street from the Fulton Ferry to Atlantic-street, and a double or single track in Atlantic-street to Flatbush-avenue, and through any street south thereof, to the city line, and to run cars thereon without being subject to the provisions of chapter 140, laws of 1854.

GOLD MINES DISCOVERED—THE MORMONS TAMPERING WITH THE INDIANS, &C.

ST. LOUIS, Saturday, Feb. 13.

The Santa Fé mail is to hand with dates to the 16th ult. The place was healthy and business was brisk.

The Legislature had adjourned to the 8th of January.

Gold mines had been discovered in the vicinity of Fort Fillmore.

There had been no palpable demonstration of hostility on part of the Utah Indians, but the Mormons were evidently temporizing with them. The agents of the Government had been instructed to act with caution and liberality towards the Indians, and to use their utmost endeavors to prevent their alliance with the Mormons.

The Santa Fé Gazette advocates the raising of a regiment of mounted riflemen in that Territory for the Utah war, stating that a march could be made from that point to Salt Lake within fifteen days. The Gazette also recommends that reinforcements be sent through New-Mexico, describing the route as being much easier than the northern, and that, with an abundance of provisions and forage, and destitute of cannon, it can be traversed quicker than via Fort Laramie.

Attempted Infanticide at Albany.

ALBANY, Sunday, Feb. 14.

A man named ALBERT BRAYTON, from Herkimer County, was arrested here on Saturday night, for attempting to commit murder. He threw his child, a few minutes old, into a privy, where it was soon after discovered and rescued. The child lived several hours after it was taken out. BRAYTON admitted that he threw it in the privy, but said he supposed it was dead. He has been married about three months. He gave bail in the sum of $2,000 to answer to the charge.

News from Havana and Key-West.

CHARLESTON, Saturday, Feb. 13, 1858.

The steamship Isabel has arrived from Havana and Key-West the 10th inst. There was no political news stirring at Havana. Sugars were in good demand, while molasses, freights and exchanges were dull, with a declining tendency. The steam-frigate Wabash left Havana on the 9th for New-York.

Hon. George Bancroft's Protest Against the Lecompton Constitution.

To the People of New-York:

On Monday, the 8th inst., having been assured that the Academy of Music had certainly been engaged for the occasion, I signed a call for an Anti-Lecompton meeting to be held there on Friday, the 12th.

On Tuesday evening one of the Directors of the Academy of Music came to my house, and expressed himself very strongly against the terms in which the meeting was called, and against the meeting; and expressed his unwillingness that a meeting should be held in the Academy under such a call and for such a purpose. But he added that he spoke only for himself; there were eight other Directors, and they might all differ from him. He also expressed his own unwillingness to grant the use of the Academy of Music for any political meeting whatever. I did not debate with him either the language of the call or its purpose, and he withdrew, excusing himself on the ground that he was in search of another person, and not of me. The next day I saw the receipt for the use of the Academy, which unequivocally leased the Hall for an "Anti-Lecompton meeting." I was also informed on Thursday, on what seemed, and still seems to me, the highest authority, that the building would be opened on Friday according to contract. On Friday morning I went to the Academy, was courteously received by the agent, found fires lighted, and every necessary preparation proceeding rapidly, nor did I receive the slightest intimation that there was any obstacle in the way of holding the meeting as proposed.

If the thousands who showed their wish to be present last evening had been allowed to assemble I might have been called upon to preside, and in that case should have addressed them. The opportunity was denied me; but the free expression of opinion cannot be stifled; the Press relieves from all such wrong, and having written out some remarks, very nearly such as I would have spoken, I submit them to my fellow-citizens of New-York, being sure that nothing is wanting to a just judgment on the subject in question but the attention of the people.

GEORGE BANCROFT.

SATURDAY, Feb. 13, 1858.

FELLOW-CITIZENS: The proper solution of the question before the country, which, in some of its aspects, is the most momentous that has been presented since the adoption of the Federal Constitution, is self-evident; but that solution has been so thwarted that it is made necessary to revert to first principles, and to take counsel of the people, who are the source of wisdom and of power. We are assembled to-night, not in hostility to the Administration. We venerate the President for his age and past services, and desire to remove out of his path the great obstacle to his present usefulness. Still less are we at variance with the South. We have never feared to sustain the South on any question in which the South was in the right, and we are justified in asking its coöperation to prevent a great national wrong which, if consummated, will injure its friends. Far from opposing Democracy, we come here to-night to uphold it, by freshening in our minds the love of Justice and Freedom, without which Democracy is a delusion.

We are assembled to protest against forcing the Lecompton Constitution upon the people of Kansas against their will. Bear with me, fellow-citizens, if, before taking the Chair, in the fewest possible words I speak to the facts in the case, to the right, and to the means of redress.

As to the facts of the case, the Lecompton Constitution was authorized in advance by no one branch of the General Government. The Senate of the United States passed a bill for a Convention in Kansas, having in view a very different mode of procedure. The House, by a decided vote, declared itself willing to accept the real and true opinion of the majority of Kansas, however it might be expressed. The President, through his agent, the Governor of the Territory, vetoed the bill for the Convention. The Senate, the House, the President of the United States, are all innocent of the Lecompton Convention. The people of the Territory never elected that Convention, and never had an opportunity to do so. The lists of voters were made out by partisan officers, who acted under no penalties for neglect of duty. Fifteen counties, by no fault of their own, had no possible opportunity to vote at all. The Convention, therefore, never had even a pretext for binding the people. Before the Convention did its work a new election of a Kansas Legislature took place, and, thanks to WALKER and STANTON, false, fraudulent and forged returns were rejected, and a Legislature was formed of unquestioned legality. The Convention, knowing the true will of the people, in defiance of that will, refused to refer the Constitution to the people, sequestered their inalienable rights, and made themselves masters. They acknowledged that such a reference should have been made at least on the Slavery clause, and then they framed a schedule which made no true reference even of that clause, but disfranchised all except those who would acknowledge their usurpation, and were willing to take test oaths to support it. The Convention further assumed most extraordinary powers, and sought in advance to nullify and render void the acts of the newly-elected Legislature. They did what they could to show approbation of the fraudulent vote which WALKER and STANTON, with the approval, it is to be hoped, of the President, had rejected. Moreover, it ordered an election of State officers, under their unratified Constitution, without requiring an oath of the election officers, or affixing a penalty on fraudulent voting or forged returns; and they, moreover, directed returns to be made, not to the Governor or the legal Legislature, but to one man alone, the President of their Convention; a man holding a most lucrative office and a large patronage under the General Government; clothed with power to judge at his discretion of all returns of a Legislature before which he might become a candidate for office; bound by no oath to fidelity, and exposed to no legal penalty for the abuse of his trust. We hold, then, that the Convention has no claim to the sovereignty in Kansas but by usurpation; that it had in no wise the sanction of Congress, nor of the President, nor of the people of Kansas, and was but a cunning device to defraud the people of its sovereignty.

The cardinal point on which the great question turns is this: Is the Lecompton Constitution the choice and will of the people of Kansas? I say it is not, and I shall prove it. The first witness is the Convention itself; they were urged to refer the matter to the people; the President, in his high office, pledged himself over and over, and over again, to the approbation of that course; and by the authority, and with the knowledge of the President, the Governor and officers of the President's appointment, quieted the discontents of the people of Kansas by advocating the necessity of such submission before the Constitution could claim any validity. And yet the Convention refused to submit its doings to the people: thus confessing its consciousness that its work would be rejected.

The second witness is the newspaper Press of Kansas; that press is against the Constitution by a majority of seven or eight to one.

Next; Kansas, by act of Congress, has a right to a delegate in Congress, charged with the duty to speak for its people. They have now a delegate who is undoubtedly the choice of the people, and is the first Kansas delegate ever chosen by the people. He is my third witness.

Next; ask the line of Governors appointed by Presidents themselves; GEARY; WALKER, formerly Senator from Mississippi, and recently proposed for a place in the present President's Cabinet, and highly commended by the President himself; STANTON, so lately Member of Congress from Tennessee, all agree. And I would not fear to ask DENVER, the present incumbent; he will certify that even a fraction of the party against the Lecompton Constitution is more numerous than the whole of its friends.

Fifth—The people of Kansas now happily, thanks to WALKER and STANTON, have a Legislature indisputably representing that people; and so soon as they could lift up their voice, they protested against the Lecompton Constitution.

Sixth—Those State Officers who received the largest number of votes at the election on the 4th of January last, have likewise sent their protest to Congress.

Seventh—The voice of the people of Kansas itself should be heard. On the 4th of January they repaired to the polls under no ordinary circumstances of solemnity. The President had sanctioned the proceedings by his special protection; the Legislature and DENVER took care that the vote should be an honest one, and by that vote it appears that an overwhelming majority of the people of Kansas reject the Constitution of Lecompton.

So then we have seven sets of witnesses against Lecompton: the circumstantial evidence of the Lecompton Convention; the Kansas Press; the Kansas Delegate in Congress; the series of Kansas Governors—four in one year; the Kansas Legislature; the Kansas People. All, all declare that the People of Kansas reject the Lecompton Constitution.

If I could hope that the words of one so humble as myself could reach the presence of one so high as the President of the United States, I would entreat him to lend his ear reverently, and hear and respect the voice of the people of Kansas, however lowly they may seem in the log cabins and homes that they have made for themselves in the wilderness. What they have accomplished there, under unexampled trials and difficulties, is the miracle of the age. A commonwealth, in all its fair proportions, has grown up, as it were, in the night-time. If the President of the United States will have a peaceful Administration; if he will, by and by, have dignity in retirement; if he will stand well with the world of mankind; if, like WASHINGTON and all our great Presidents, he wishes to stand well with posterity, let him respect the will of the people of Kansas.

It is said that the whole affair is of little consequence; that the wrong, if it be a wrong, is a small one. But there is in political justice no such thing as a small wrong. A small wrong contains within itself the seeds of all evil.

It is further said that the people were factious, and as they meant at any rate to reject the Lecompton Constitution, it was right not to give them a chance to do so. But if the Constitution for any reason did not please them, they had a right to reject it; nothing is so factious as a minority attempting to rule a majority.

It is said they should be punished for not going to the polls at the bidding of men who were believed to be disposed to defraud them. They went to the polls the first moment that they were satisfied of any chance of a fair return, even though suffering under great disadvantage in the apportionment of representatives.

It is said that the people of Kansas, once admitted into the Union, may change their Constitution. If this is dishonestly said, I will not use the language which would properly describe the proposition. If, as it is to be presumed, it is honestly said, and I am sure it is honestly said by the President, then why give to the men of Kansas a reversionary right where they have a right of possession? Why do wrong, simply that wrong may be undone? If this is all that is intended, if there is nothing behind this, if there are no indications of a wish to perplex the national councils, and so to pave the way for a change of the national policy or for disunion, then mischief has been done wantonly and gratuitously; the country is convulsed by its public authorities, for an issue as ludicrous as it is wrong. It was hardly worth the while to shatter the Democratic Party for anything so paltry. But while it is admitted that the submission of a Constitution to the people is the correct principle, it is said that fourteen States would be displeased if this correct principle were to be followed out. Now the South, in the organic act for Kansas, obtained all that it asked for, and the main result has been exactly what Southern men foresaw. The South has nothing whatever to gain by the adoption of the Lecompton Constitution. It presents no question of practical advantage to the South, and it cannot be pretended that the admission of Kansas under it will carry with it any advantage for the South. As a question on the score of expediency it does nothing but injury to the South; the issue presented as a Southern one, is untimely and mistaken, unwise, and anything but national.

And would it wound any at the South less to have the people of Kansas, as soon as the General Government is out of the way, undo all that has been done? Is it not more respectful to the South to state the case manfully and temperately, and rely on Southern magnanimity and sense of justice?

Again, it is said the Union is in danger; the Union is to be dissolved. There is no present danger to the Union. The sufferers of wrong in Kansas have been almost all Northern men; and the North has no wish to desert, or dissolve, or weaken the Union.

But it is urged the men of Kansas are in rebellion. The imposition of a loathsome and rejected Constitution is an odd remedy for pretended rebellion, which, as far as I know, has no precedent, except in King George and the British Parliament in 1774. If Gov. WALKER found discontents there, the promises of equity which he made in the name of the President quelled rebellion by means of the ballot-box. The waves never rise unless the wind blows. If the menace of the Lecompton Constitution seemed likely to excite disturbances, Gov. STANTON, to his honor be it said, lulled the rising commotion, not by calling in the Army of the United States, but by peaceably convoking the legal Legislature of the country.

There is now no insurrection in Kansas; there is no rebellion there. Cease to dispute the unquestionable right of the majority, and the star of peace will rise serenely, the storm will be hushed, and the waves subside. The Government will not find a rebellion there; let it not provoke one.

And what a contrast between a Governor of a Territory restoring peace through the representatives of the people and an officer of the General Government, calling himself a President of a Convention, taking an escort from the army of the United States to make his entry into the capital of Kansas amid the murmurs of its people.

If to the question between the Lecompton Constitution and the people of Kansas we apply the test of principle, we find that the enforcement of that Constitution will be an act of power against right; of the army against the people; of force against reason; of usurpation against the rightful will of a majority. It will be a violation of the fundamental principle of free government, which is government by consent. It is directly at war with Democracy, whose cardinal point is the power of the people. The supporters of the Lecompton Constitution have not one square inch of Democratic ground to stand upon. A constitution for its validity needs the concurrence of the majority of the people, either silently by a general acquiescence or by an appeal to the polls. Shall full and undoubted evidence be required for a deed of a foot of land or a gift by will of a shilling? Shall a merchant or banker have power to stop payment of a check fraudulently held, and shall the people have no power to stop their servants from sequestering their rights? Shall the most insignificant treaty of a Minister Plenipotentiary want validity till it is ratified? And shall the highest treaty of the people with themselves be made in a corner by their servants without their assent? Is form everything and substance nothing? Is appearance everything and truth and right and reality nothing?

There is not a precedent for enforcing a Constitution against the consent of the people. The principle of popular ratification is sanctioned in the Minnesota act.

The President in his annual Message emphatically declares that the example of submitting a Constitution to the people is founded on a correct principle; so that his instructions to Gov. WALKER on that subject were properly expressed in unqualified terms.

Again: Congress has power to admit States, but no power whatever to make a Constitution for a State; still less to impose on a State a Constitution which the majority of its people loathe and reject. The tendency to centralization of power in the General Government is rapid and dangerous. We protest against its further increase and against its present excess. The true basis of political organization between all parts of the Union was, from its beginning, the rights of the States, and that basis offers for the future, as it has for the past, the most perfect guarantee for security and Union.

Redress must come from the people of the United States. They in their strength must remedy the existing evil, by a distinct expression of their will. The moment is fraught with dangers, which the adoption of the Lecompton Constitution would only aggravate.

A departure from the principles on which a Government rests, is an evidence of its decay. The violation of the principle of popular sovereignty wastes the life-blood of the Republic.

Again: In a popular Government, where the rulers are but servants, anarchy steps in when principle is forgotten and expediency is made the guide.

Again: the concentration of power in the hands of a Convention like that of Lecompton, is not an American idea. It is borrowed from those republics of Europe which were not capable of existing long, for the very reason that power was so concentrated. It is derived from the worst examples of the worst periods of revolutionary France, when minorities usurped power over a nation by terror and reckless daring. If the rule of the minority Convention is now formally sanctioned by Congress, it will be a most dangerous precedent; an instrument of wrath, treasured up for a day of wrath. We appeal against this system to the whole Democracy of the country; we appeal to all people who love order, and justice, and freedom. This City, for its numbers, is the wealthiest in the world. I call on the men of wealth in this great City to take to heart the danger of establishing as a principle that a majority of a single body, elected to a convention perhaps in times of high excitement, filled, as will sometimes happen, with men desperately daring and corrupt, animated, as men under such circumstances are apt to be, by personal and party passions, should assume the absolute right to change the fundamental law of the country without a reference to the people. If they are not alarmed on account of their own fortunes, I can think it to comport with their dignity, their honor, their character, to submit tamely to such usurpation

MISCELLANEOUS.

A BEAUTIFUL HEAD
RICH GLOSSY HAIR,
COMPLETELY PRESERVED
TO THE GREATEST AGE.

And who that is gray would not have it restored to former color; or bald, but would have the growth restored or troubled with dandruff and itching, but would have it removed; or troubled with scrofula, scald head or other eruptions, but would be cured; or with sick head ache, (neuralgia,) but would be cured? It will also remove all pimples from the face and skin. Prof. Wood's Hair Restorative will do all this—see circular and the following:

ANN ARBOR Nov. 5, 1853.

Prof. O. J. Wood—Dear Sir: I have heard much said of the wonderful effects of your Hair Restorative, but having been so often cheated by quackery and quack nostrums, hair dyes, &c., I was disposed to place your Restorative in the same category with the thousand and one loudly-trumpeted quack remedies, until I met you in Lawrence County some months since, when you gave me such assurance as induced the trial of your Restorative in my family—first by my good wife, whose hair had become very thin and entirely whit, and before exhausting one of your large bottles her hair was restored nearly to its original beautiful brown color, and had thickened and become beautiful and glossy upon and entirely over the head; she continues to use it, not only because of its beautifying effects upon the hair, but because of its healthful influence upon the head and mind. Others of my family and friends are using your Restorative with the harshest effects; therefore, my skepticism and doubts in reference to the character and value are entirely removed, and I can and do most cordially and confidentially recommend its use by all who would have their hair (if gray restored from white or gray (by reason of sickness or age) restored from white or gray (by reason of sickness or age) to original color and beauty, and by all young persons who would have their hair beautiful and glossy.

Very truly and gratefully yours,
SOLOMON MANN.

FRIEND Wood: It was a long time after I saw you at Blissfield before I got the bottle of Restorative for which you gave me an order upon your agent in Detroit, and when I got it we concluded to try it on Mrs. Mann's hair, as the poorest test of its power. It has done all that you assured me it would do; and others of my family and friends, having witnessed its effects, are now using and recommending its use to others as entitled to the highest consideration you can claim for it. Again, very respectfully and truly, yours,
SOLOMON MANN.

CARLYLE, Ill., June 28, 1852.

I have used Prof. O. J. Wood's Hair Restorative, and have admired its wonderful effects. My hair was becoming, as I thought, prematurely gray, but by the use of his Restorative it has resumed its original color, and, I have no doubt, permanently so.

SALE OF GOLD MINES.—THE UNDERSIGNED Trustee hereby gives notice that he will sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, at the Merchants' Exchange, in the City of New-York, on the 10th day of March, 1858, at 12 o'clock, noon, the following property, to wit: All those tracts of land situated in the Counties of Orange and Spotsylvania, in the State of Virginia, containing about 1,129 acres, and formerly known as the Melville and Kuton tracts, and lately occupied and worked by the Melville Gold Mining Company, together with all the buildings, offices, mills, machinery and personal property of every description and kind which may be on or connected with the premises at the time of sale. This property lies about 18 miles west of Fredericksburg on the plank road leading from the latter place, and is bounded partly by the Rapid Ann River; it is about equally divided into arable and woodland, the former being very fertile and surpassed by none other in the vicinity. This property contains several large veins of gold on it, which has been mined for many years. Shafts well timbered and in excellent order have been sunk on these veins to the depth of a hundred feet, and a large pump, capable of draining the mines, is now in working order. There is also situated at the mines a large mill house, with a steam engine of thirty horse power. Three large Chillian mills, twelve stamps, two shaking tables and Kentl's Amalgamator, all in working condition. There is also on this property a fine water power, with mill-house containing six stamps and one Chillian mill in excellent order. The farm is well stocked with horses, mules, wagons carts, harness, farming utensils, &c. There are also about one thousand bushels of corn and eight hundred bushels of oats on the place, all of which will be sold with the above-described property. This estate is known as one of the best gold mining properties in the State of Virginia. The title is perfect. The terms of sale are as follows:

Ten per cent. of the purchase money on the day of sale; an amount with this sufficient to make up $30,000, on delivery of the title deeds within twenty days after the sale, and the balance within six months from the day of sale, with interest and secured by mortgage on the property. Possession given on delivery of the deeds. For further particulars, inquire of FREDK. G. BURNHAM, Trustee, No. 167 Broadway, New-York.

The Directors, having reserved the value of all policies in force and all obligations against the Company, have, from the surplus, declared a dividend of 35 per cent. on the premiums paid at the table rates, to those policies in force issued prior to January 1st, 1857, (except term policies,) without interest: in Scrip to those who have paid their premiums in cash, and to the credit of those who are indebted to the Company for premiums.

The Directors have also ordered the payment of the tenth dividend that declares January 1st, 1856, to be paid to the members when their annual premiums become due, during the year 1858. Those holding Scrip to be allowed the same as cash in payment of premiums, and others to be credited the amount on their notes as they mature.

NEW-YORK STATE CANALS.—NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.—REPAIRS OF CHEMUNG AND CHENANGO CANALS.—In pursuance of Act, Chapter 105, Laws of 1857, and of a resolution of the Contracting Board, notice is hereby given that sealed proposals will be received by the undersigned at the Engineer's Office, in the city of Syracuse, until Wednesday, the 3d day of March next, at 10 o'clock A. M., for furnishing all the materials and performing all the work necessary, or that may be required, to keep in good repair and in good navigable condition during such time in each year as the Canal Commissioners or Commissioner in charge shall direct, for a period of five years from the 15th day of March next. Penalty in Bond.

The Chemung Canal and Feeder	$8,000
Section No. 3 Chenango Canal	5,000
Together with all and each of the Side Cuts, Structures, Feeders and Reservoirs connected therewith.

Every proposal shall be accompanied by an affidavit indorsed thereon, of each person uniting in such proposal, that he is not directly or indirectly interested in any other proposal for the same work or materials, or any part of the same; that he has no agreement or understanding with any other person to become interested in any other proposal or contract for the same work or materials or any part thereof; and that no other person than such as shall be named in the proposal is interested in the same, or has any agreement or understanding to become interested in any contract that may be made in pursuance of such proposal.

Every proposal for the above-mentioned work or materials must be accompanied with a bond to the people of this State, in the penalty specified above, and which bond shall be signed by the party making such proposal and two or more responsible sureties, with such evidence of their responsibility as the Contracting Board shall require, and which sureties shall justify in sums equal in the aggregate to twice the amount of such penalty.

Each proposal must be accompanied by a certificate of the Supervisor of the town, and the County Clerk or the County Judge of the County in which said surety shall reside, or any two of them, as to the responsibility of said sureties.

The persons to whom the work may be awarded will be required by the Contracting Board to give the bond for the payment of laborers' wages, as required by chapter 278 of the laws of 1850.

No acceptance of a proposal or award of a contract by the Contracting Board, and no contract made by them, or any interest in the same, shall be assignable to any person or persons, without the written consent of the Canal Commissioners.

The Commissioners will reserve fifteen per cent. of the amount of each relative monthly estimate of work done and materials delivered, as a security to the State for the performance of the contract, and at the expiration of the third month of each year, the fifteen per cent. thus retained during the previous year, shall be paid to the contractor, providing the provisions of the contract shall have been fully complied with.

In case the Contracting Board shall be of opinion that the proposals made at any meeting thereof, pursuant to any advertisement, are in consequence of any combination or otherwise, excessive and disadvantageous to the State, they may decline all or any of the said proposals, and advertise anew for the work and materials embraced therein.

The person or persons to whom the contract may be awarded will be required to receive the boats, tools and other implements specified in the following Schedule, and allow therefor the respective prices therein stated, viz.:

THE NEW-YORK AND LIVERPOOL UNITED STATES MAIL STEAMERS.—The ships comprising this line are

The ATLANTIC, Capt. Oliver Eldridge.
The BALTIC Capt. Joseph Comstock.
The ADRIATIC. Capt. James Wens.

These ships have been built by contract expressly for Government service, every care has been taken in their construction, as also in their engines, to insure strength and speed; and their accommodations for passengers are unequaled for elegance and comfort.

The steamers of this line have improved water-tight compartments, and no expense has been spared to make them all as good as new; the thorough examination given them proves their mode of construction YET UNEQUALED.

Price of passage from New-York to Liverpool, in first cabin, $130; second do., $75. From Liverpool to New-York, 36 and 20 guineas. An experienced surgeon attached to each ship. No berth can be secured until paid for.

FIRES.

The Island Hospital on Blackwell's Island Burned to the Ground.

NARROW ESCAPE OF THE INMATES.

We mentioned in our second edition Saturday, that the Hospital on Blackwell's Island had been entirely destroyed by fire. The fire originated in the private kitchen of the resident physician, and was discovered by one of the watchmen at 3½ o'clock Saturday morning. The alarm was immediately given. The two fire engines stationed on the Island were called into requisition, and the convicts being stationed in line, passed buckets of water from the river to the building. About fifty prisoners from the Work-house and Penitentiary were brought out and did good service but without avail. The inmates of the hospital, about 550 in number, were taken out with the utmost dispatch. The flames spread so rapidly that it was impossible to remove any of the furniture and bedding.

From Dr. SANGER'S kitchen, which was situated in the basement of the middle building, the fire spread rapidly to the rooms above. The physicians of the institution, and their families and servants—in all about fifteen persons—occupied this part of the building. Most of them were, of course, asleep when the alarm was given. They had no time to dress themselves or to remove their valuables, but with the utmost expedition made their way out of the building. Their footsteps were hurried, probably, by their knowledge of the fact that in the second story of the middle building was situated the apothecary's shop, in which there were articles of a combustible character. The matron of the Hospital escaped from the building with difficulty. She was awakened when the alarm was first sounded, but, from some inexplicable cause, had retired again, and was in a sound doze, when the smoke became so dense, and the crackling of the flames so audible, that she was a second time aroused. She did not stop to don any garments other than the night-clothes which she had on, but rushed out on to the balcony of the second story and screamed for assistance. She was rescued from her perilous position by Mr. SIMPSON, the Engineer of the Almshouse, who ascended to the balcony on a ladder and brought her down.

There were about 530 patients sound asleep locked in the wings of the building, when the fire broke out. They were all saved. The doors were opened as soon as possible, and all who were able to walk made their hasty exit. Those who were too ill to help themselves were carried out by the officers of the Institution on the Island who were quickly on the ground. All the inmates of the hospital were soon placed in comfortable quarters. The men were taken to the workhouse, and the women were conveyed to the building formerly occupied as a manufactory of portemonnaies and razor-strops.

Meanwhile the flames had spread to the two wings of the hospital, and the whole building was in a blaze. A strong wind from the north-west prevailed, the engines were out of order, and all the efforts of the officers and convicts to save the building seemed to retard the progress of the flames but very little. By 8 o'clock the asylum was in ashes. Nearly all the personal property in the building was destroyed.

The Island Hospital, which, as we had occasion to mention about a week ago, had just been separated from the Penitentiary Hospital, of which it was formerly a part, to be appropriated to the treatment of patients afflicted with syphilis and other kindred diseases, was built in 1856-7. Public attention was first called to the building in 1851, when the Legislature had a dinner there and drank so freely that many of our readers have not yet forgotton what ridiculous speeches were made on the occasion. The building was situated on the southern end of the Island, between the new Small-pox Hospital and the Penitentiary. It was probably in a measure owing to its exposed position that it was consumed so quickly. The middle building was 75 feet long and 60 feet wide. The two wings, one on each side of the building, occupied by the officers of the Hospital, were each 125 feet long and 50 feet wide. One of them was occupied exclusively by female patients, and the other was appropriated to the use of diseased persons of the other sex. The Hospital would accommodate about 600 patients. The edifice was three stories high, and was built of stone. The cost of building it was about $50,000. It was clumsily constructed, and it is doubtful whether its destruction by fire has not prevented a more serious calamity. A small building, known as "Mayor Tiemann's Cook-house," adjoining the Hospital, was, with difficulty, saved. The entire loss to the City is about $100,000, and is not covered by insurance.

MEETING OF THE BOARD OF GOVERNORS.

When the news of the disaster at Blackwell's Island was known at the Rotunda, the Board of Governors was immediately summoned, and those gentlemen, after short conference, left for the scene, in order to provide temporary and suitable accommodations for the dislodged inmates of the Hospital. His Honor the Mayor, who has been a prominent and active member of the Board during three years past, accompanied the party. It was found that the warden had been active in making the best arrangements in his power. Some of the sufferers had been drafted off to the Workhouse, and others to the Almshouse.

It was decided that sheds should be built immediately, and in two or three weeks the patients will be accommodated in that way. A new hospital is to be erected, which possibly may be completed early in the Summer. It is certain that no time will be lost. There is stone on the spot, and all the available labor of the prisoners will be put in requisition. The building just destroyed was erected in 1846 by order of the Common Council, at an expense of $90,000. It was in many respects an inefficient structure, badly built, too small, and often requiring expensive repairs.

FIRE IN EIGHTH-AVENUE.—On Saturday morning, a little before 5 o'clock, a fire was discovered in a green-house attached to the residence of MRS. SAML. SMITH, corner of Ninth-street and Eighth-avenue. The fire extended to the dwelling-house, the furniture of which was damaged to the extent of about $1,200—fully insured. A valuable collection of very rare plants was destroyed.

FIRE IN LEWIS-STREET.—On Saturday afternoon, at 1 o'clock, a fire occurred in the basement of the dwelling house No. 118 Lewis-street, occupied by FREDERICK MINT. It was soon extinguished. Loss, $25—no insurance.

FIRE IN AVENUE A.—A fire was discovered at 4 o'clock, on Saturday morning, by officer HITCHCOCK, of the Seventeenth Ward, in the cellar of the tenement house No. 200 Avenue A. It was extinguished with trifling damage.

FERRY-BOAT ACCIDENT.—MARY ANN WILLIAMS an Irish girl, living in Brooklyn, in attempting Friday evening to jump on to one of the Hamilton-avenue Ferry-boats, missed her foothold and fell between the bridge and the guards, fracturing her thigh. She was taken to the City Hospital.

"ALMONI, THE SCOURGE OF THE MISSOURI."—This new dramatization (by MR. J. F. POOL) of the popular story of this name, lately published in the New-York Sun, is to be presented at Purdy's National Theatre, to-night. MR. J. H. ALLEN, MR. G. L. FOX, MR. H. F. NICHOLS, MISS HATHAWAY, and the full strength of the company appearing in the cast. The grand and gorgeously-beautiful comic pantomime of "Boreas; or, Aquilon, the Spirit of Air," is to be revived in all its brilliancy; in which all the favorite pantomime of the company will appear, together with the renowned Carlo Family, seven in number. The drama, entitled the "Galley Slaves" will also be performed for the first time.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Habitual constipation predisposes the system to receive infection, vitiates the breath, and renders the whole body impure. Mere purgatives aggravate the disease and impair the strength of the sufferer. This remedy, on the contrary, permanently regulates the excretive function, and gives vigor to the frame while it purifies the animal fluids.

LONG ISLAND.

ANOTHER MURDER IN BROOKLYN.

Arrest of the Perpetrators—A Public Meeting Held and a Vigilance Committee Appointed.

Between 6 and 7 o'clock on Saturday evening, MR. GEORGE H. SIMONSON, of Brooklyn, was attacked by three ruffians at the door of STEPHEN STORY'S saloon, on Pierrepont near Fulton-street, and so badly injured that he died between 4 and 5 o'clock yesterday morning.

No person but those engaged in the attack, so far as is now known, saw the mortal blow given. Mr. SIMONSON was picked up a few minutes after insensible, and remained in that condition until he died. From different sources we gather the following particulars, which, so far as they go, are believed to be reliable.

Just before the attack MR. SIMONSON was sitting in the above-named saloon, in company with several of his acquaintances. While he was sitting there five firemen, three of them named PATRICK LALLY, JOSEPH J. MALLON and GEORGE MCGARRY, came in, and called for drinks. As they entered the place LALLY remarked "Here is a nice set of —pots. I would like to take some of them." No reply was made to this, and he in a few minutes said "he could whip any son of a b—— in the house." At this Mr. SIMONSON stepped towards him, and in a conciliatory manner said, "Young man, you ought not to use such language here; there is no one here to whom it applies, nor is there any one here who wishes to fight." These remarks seemed to quiet LALLY, and the persons present drank together, at the invitation of Mr. SIMONSON. In a few minutes LALLY, MALLON and MCGARRY went out—and, shortly after, Mr. SIMONSON, hearing some noise at the door, went out to see what the trouble was. He was next seen, insensible, upon the sidewalk, by Mr. NOBINE, who keeps a livery stable next door to the saloon; he had apparently fallen from the door of the saloon down a flight of six or eight steps to the street. Just at this time the three parties above named were seen to run away, and LALLY's cap was found near the body of Mr. SIMONSON. The alarm was at once given, when Mr. S. was taken into the saloon, and was subsequently taken on a litter to his residence, on Duffield-street, near Myrtle-avenue. The police of the First Precinct, hearing of the affair, immediately started in pursuit of the offenders. LALLY, who is Assistant-Foreman of Engine Company No. 5, was shortly after arrested in the house of that company. He did not deny the charge made against him, but acknowledged that the cap found was his. He was committed to the cells of the First Precinct. MCGARRY and MALLON were traced to New-York and about 3 o'clock yesterday morning both were found in the house of Hose Company No. 47, on Reade-street. MALLON, who is member of that Company, was at once identified and brought to Brooklyn. MCGARRY was not identified at the time, and he crossed to Brooklyn soon after, and at 7 o'clock yesterday morning was arrested at a house on Myrtle-avenue, near Division-street.

To get at MCGARRY the officers had to break the door of the house down, and then found him concealed in bed under a woman. MALLON and MCGARRY both say that the fatal blow was given by LALLY. It appears that the three had been traveling together during the afternoon, and just betore the murder, went in to examine Engine No. 14, on Pierrepont-street, and then invited two of the members of that Company into the saloon to take a drink. These two men, the moment they got their drinks, left, fearing, as they say, that there might be a disturbance. It is stated that LALLY, on his way to a fire before his arrest, boasted that he had that night "taken" the biggest man in Brooklyn.

The news of this outrage spread rapidly throughout the city, and there was a strong disposition manifested to lynch LALLY. Everything possible was done to save the life of Mr. SIMONSON. He only spoke once, and then cried out, "Help," "Help."

Yesterday morning Coroner COZINE took charge of the body and summoned the following Jury:

F. C. KIRBY, Foreman.

John C. Smith,	Samuel Foster,
Wm. W. Walsh,	John McDonald,
P. Burgess,	T. H. Walsh,
G. Baker,	Charles H. Smith,
J. E. Annan,	Stephen Cahoon.
W. O. Lewis,

At the request of the Coroner, Drs. G. & A. COCHRAN and BALL, of the Police Department, held a post mortem examination. The result of this examination was, that they found that the temporal and other bones were fractured from the frontal bone to the base of the brain. There was a large extravasation of blood arising from the rupture of the meningeal artery. The wound on the inner corner of the left eye extended through to the roof of the mouth—a distance of one and a half inches—breaking in its passage the nasal bones; this wound also exposed the brain. He died from the effects of the extravasated blood and the fracture.

It is supposed that LALLY must have struck deceased with some sharp instrument, as the bone over the left eye, and the nose, clear through to the mouth, are broken, and the inside base of the skull. The wound bled freely; blood flowed from the ears, and a large quantity was thrown from the stomach.

The Coroner's Jury will proceed to take testimony in the case to-day.

So far as is now known, there was no motive whatever for this attack, further than a desire on the part of LALLY to injure somebody.

LALLY is a notorious rowdy, belongs to Engine Co. No. 5, and is one of a gang of rowdies who call themselves the "Forty Acre Crowd." He is about 22 years of age. Only a few weeks ago he beat a man, named PETER BERTINE, on Myrtle-avenue, so severely that he was confined to his house for several weeks. This attack was made without provocation, and yet Mr. BERTINE dares not make a complaint against LALLY, for fear of further violence from him or some of his gang.

GEORGE MCGARRY is another noted rowdy, and belongs to the same fire company and crowd as LALLY. He is only 20 years of age.

JOSEPH J. MALLON is Assistant Foreman of Hose Company No. 27, New-York. His antecedents are not so well known on this side of the river, but his appearance is decidedly against him.

MCGARRY tends bar at GASCOYNE'S, corner of Myrtle-avenue and Raymond-street.

LALLY is a plumber by trade, and works in that department in the Navy-Yard.

MALLON is also a plumber, and works with LALLY in the Navy-Yard.

The deceased was about 44 years old, a butcher by trade, and in 1856 was the American candidate for Sheriff. No man in Brooklyn, probably, had more sincere friends than GEORGE H. SIMONSON, and, as may well be expected, his murder has excited them very much. He was physically a powerful man, but peaceable and affable in his disposition, and was never known to pick a quarrel with any one; on the contrary, by his conciliatory manner he has prevented many disturbances: as a peace-maker he was every where well known, and none believed that he could ever have given any provocation for the attack.

It is stated, but with how much truth we cannot determine, that LALLY owed him a spite for interfering some weeks ago, while he (LALLY) was beating MR. BERTINE. He leaves behind him a wife and married daughter, upon whom, as well as a numerous circle of acquaintances, this blow falls heavily.

The funeral will take place at 2 o'clock, P. M., Tuesday next.

VIGILANCE COMMITTEE APPOINTED.

The announcement of the death of Mr. SIMONSON, yesterday morning, caused the greatest excitement. It found vent, not in threats of violence, but in expressions of grief and sympathy, and a firm determination that the guilty parties should be found and properly punished. During the afternoon a public meeting was suggested, and it was agreed to meet in Gothic Hall at 7 o'clock. At that hour several hundred of the most respectable citizens of Brooklyn assembled.

On motion of Mr. WM. H. WRIGHT, Ex-Mayor HALL was called to the Chair, and RODMAN B. DAWSON, Esq., was appointed Secretary.

Mr. HALL then explained the object of the meeting to be to take some measures to ferrit out the assassins of Mr. SIMONSON, bring them to justice, and adopt some means for the protection of citizens from violence on the most public thoroughfares.

A motion was then made to appoint the following gentlemen as a Vigilance Committee to carry out the object of the meeting:

THE VIGILANCE COMMITTEE.

Wm. Van Brant,	James K. Leggett,	Daniel P. Barnard,
Geo. L. Sampson,	Rich. C. Underhill,	John R. Oakley,
James T. Leete,	John P. Rolfe,	Richard Martin,
Andrew Desendorf,	Winches'r Brittan,	Thomas Jerome.

On motion, Ex-Mayor HALL was added to the Committee.

A motion to attend the funeral of deceased in a body on Tuesday next, and to wear a badge of mourning on the left arm, was carried.

On motion of Mr. SEAMEN, the meeting adjourned to meet again at the call of the Committee.

It was understood that the Committee were to present suitable resolutions at the next meeting.

FIRES IN BROOKLYN.—About 2 o'clock yesterday morning, a shed and moulding-room attached to the Phenix Iron Railing Factory, on Court near Congress-street, were destroyed by fire. The building belongs to GEORGE W. STILWELL, and his loss is estimated at $2,000. Insured for $1,500 in the Farmer's Union Company of Athens, Penn.

There were two alarms of fire on Saturday evening, and one last evening, neither of which resulted in loss of property.

BURGLARY.—A house on Oxford-street, near Myrtle-avenue, Brooklyn, was robbed by burglars Saturday night of a gold watch, a gold breastpin and their articles of value.

MONDAY, Feb. 15—A. M.

The California mail and treasure packet of Jan. 20 arrived at this port on Saturday afternoon, delivering, by manifest, $1,348,507 in bullion. In addition to this sum the steamer on the Pacific side brought down to the Isthmus of Panama $569,931 for England direct. The same packet, ast year, brought $1,097,807 for New-York, $102,000 for New-Orleans, and $323,101 for England direct. The production at the mines goes on satisfactorily, and the present mail assures a little more activity, particularly in Breadstaffs, in the San Francisco market. The papers also advise the final sanction of the Courts to the mode of adjusting the public debt, and a highly encouraging condition of the finances of the State. The new Treasurer entered upon his office in January with a balance paid over by his predecessor of $450,000, being the surplus revenue of the single year 1857, over and above the expenditures of the State. The adjustment of the Public Debt, as now legalized, will amount to about $3,900,000. All the old Bonds of the State must be surrendered to the authorities at Sacramento before 1st of January, 1859, or, under the terms of the law, they become null, as an issue made without proper constitutional authority. The taxables of the State during the past year were from $113,000,000 to $131,000,000. The principal of the Public Debt is made less than 3 ₱ cent. of the taxables, and cannot be increased without an amendment to the Constitution.

The very irregular receipt and long delay of news from England the past week, created some little pause in the activity and buoyancy of State and other dividend-paying stocks, usually influenced by foreign news. But prices for all these were steadily maintained, while the general list continued to the close on Saturday both improved in prices, and speculative in temper. The overdue dispatches from the Niagara at Halifax will probably be received in time for this morning's edition of our paper. The latest advices from London to the hour of writing this report are by the North Star from Southampton, to Wednesday, January 27. Increased firmness is noted in the market for American and Canadian securities. Sales of Illinois Central at 96, closing 97. Sales of New-York Central 8 ₱ cents. at 89½; New-York Central 6s held for 86 and the 7s for 94 ₱ cent. The shares held fo 78 ₱ cent. which is a further rise of 2 ₱ cent. in the pretensions of holders. The Erie shares continue to be quoted at 18@22; the Bonds of 1883 74@76 ₱ cent. The English Funds the same as quoted by the Indian. Money abundant and the Bank still accumulating Gold.

The Foreign Trade at the port of New-York for the past week is the lightest in the General Merchandise import recorded for a long time; the entries being only $589,737. Including the Dry Goods table in our last paper, the total importation of the week is only $2,628,900 against $7,942,070 the corresponding week last year. The falling off since the current Treasury year set in on July 1, now reaches $21,445,510, nearly the whole deficit or $20,434,586, having occurred since the 1st January. The Exports of Domestic Produce and Miscellaneous Goods during the week past amounted to $865,156 against $1,074,202 same week last year. The direct export of Specie during the week was $48,850, against $48,216 same week last year; and vid Boston $200,000. against same sum in that direction the corresponding week last season. The Specie balance in the Sub-Treasury on Saturday afternoon stood $3,384,773 against $3,168,787 at the close of the previous week. The Bank reserve at the beginning of the week was on a falling average, and as the California remittance will count but one day in the average to be made up this afternoon, the probability is the official showing will be something under thirty millions of dollars, but with thirty-one millions really in bank this morning. The average on the last statement was $30,-62,818. The export demand for Bullion this week is not expected to equal more than half the sum sent forward by the last direct Cunarder, and, from the present look of Foreign Bills, which have fallen a fraction below the full Specie point, the engagements for the Arabia on Wednesday may not exceed a million of dollars. The market for Money keeps easy, and comparatively cheap, particularly on demand loan and for prime short paper. There is some improvement in two or three branches of general trade, which is creating a little more fresh paper than was offering in January, but the amount scarcely equals the old engagements in other branches now running off. The Dry Goods people complain of a greatly diminished and very partially distributed demand for the Spring trade, though the received scale of importation shows that no other calculation was made by dealers in Foreign fabrics.

From the Custom-house tables of the Foreign Trade and Specie movement at this port, which we published some days ago, it will be found that for the seven months of the current Treasury year, beginning 1st July last, to the 31st January ult., the importation of foreign merchandise into New-York (exclusive of Specie)

Amounted to	$109,949,000
Add two weeks in Feb. '58	4,242,801
Total since July 1	$114,191,801
To same date last Treasury year	135,637,311
Decreased Importation this year	$21,445,510

The same tables show that for the seven months of the current Treasury year, ending Jan. 31, the clearances of Domestic Produce and Miscellaneous Goods, including Foreign articles reëxported, but excluding Specie, amounted to

to	$39,392,000
Add two weeks in February	2,212,472
Total since July 1 to date	$41,604,472
Against same time last Treasury year	50,597,648
Decreased Export Produce this year	$8,993,166

The same tables show for the seven months of the current Treasury year to Jan. 31, the Export of Specie from New-York to Foreign States amounted to

to	$26,707,000
Add two weeks in February	2,977,120
Total since July 1 to date	$29,684,120
Against same time last Treasury year	24,785,028
Increased Export Gold to date	$4,899,092

The receipts of Bullion from California, and of Foreign Gold from abroad, at this port, since 1st July.

Amount to	$29,794,976
Against same time 1857	26,388,483
Increased receipts of Gold	$3,406,493

A large speculative business was done throughout the week, the circle of dealers having been considerably enlarged by outside orders to the regular commission brokers. The foregoing table is a fair index to the general upward course of the market. At one time Galena shares touched 88 ₱ cent.; Panama, 102½; Cumberland, 23; La Crosse, 12¾, and Harlem 17. They severally left off on Saturday as quoted by the right-hand figure. The recent decline in Reading is mainly attributed to the inactivity of the stock in Philadelphia, and this in turn is ascribed to the dull prospect of the coal trade in the Schuylkill region. The general market closed firm, with a strong movement in Erie and New-York Central shares at the extreme advances.

We intimated, some days since, that the old Domestic Exchange and Stock house of CLARK, DODGE & Co. would resume business in a few days. The announcement of the firm, to this effect, appears on our advertising page this morning. The resumption of the St. Louis house is also announced. Both concerns were compelled to the suspension of prompt payments on the 3d October last, since when they have adjusted in full an aggregate liability, for their own and the account of their correspondents, of nearly five million dollars.

The Secretary of the Treasury advertises as follows for the exchange in gold of $5,000,000 for Treasury Bills, at the lowest rate of interest proposed for. No combination or conditional bid will be considered, and no fractional rate per cent. other than halves and quarters will be recognized. The awards to be made on the 15th March, by which time the present issue of $6,000,000 in 3 ₱ cents. will probably be nearly exhausted:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, Friday, Feb. 12, 1858.

Notice is hereby given that sealed proposals will be received at this department until the 15th day of March proximo, for the issue of any portion, or the whole, of five millions of dollars in Treasury notes in exchange for gold coin of the United States deposited with the Treasurer of the United States, the Treasurer of the Mint at Philadelphia, the Treasurer of the branch Mint at New-Orleans, or the Assistant Treasurers at Boston, New-York, Charleston or St. Louis, within ten days from the acceptance of such proposals, under the authority of the act of Congress, entitled "An act to authorise the issue of Treasury notes," approved 23d December, 1857.

The Treasury notes will be issued upon the receipt here of certificates of deposit with those officers to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States. They will be made payable to the order of such bidder or bidders as shall agree to make such exchange at the lowest rates of interest, not exceeding six per centum per annum, and will carry such rate from the date of the certificate of such deposit.

The proposals must state the rate of interest, without condition and without reference to other bids, and contain no other fractional rates than one-fourth, one-half, or three-fourths of one per centum. Five per centum of the amount proposed to be exchanged must be deposited with one of the Treasury officers above enumerated, whose certificate of such deposit must accompany each proposal, as security for its fulfillment. If the proposal is not accepted, immediate directions will be given to return such deposit. Should the proposals be variant from the provisions of the act of Congress, or of this notice, they will not be considered.

All proposals under this notice must be sealed, and inscribed on the outside, "Proposals for Treasury Notes." They will be opened at this Department at 12 o'clock, M., on said 15th day of March.

HOWELL COBB, Secretary of Treasury.

We understand that a portion of the Savings Deposits in Bank have been carrying as much as 4 ₱ cent. interest, although most of the Banks profess to allow no interest on deposits to their dealers generally. We do not know that the 4 ₱ cent. exception was purposely made or continued to some of the Savings Institutions to defeat the employment of 3 ₱ cent. Treasury Bills, but this purpose having been at last partially attained, we hear that the Savings offices are notified that no more than 3 ₱ cent. will be allowed at Bank after a certain date!

San Francisco Markets.

From the Shipping Register, Jan. 20.

Just prior to the departure of last steamer, a telegraphic dispatch from Sacramento announced that the Supreme Court were unanimous in the opinion that the affirmative vote of the people at the last election legalized the State debt, and, without doubt, a large advance in the market value of the Bonds took place on the reception of the news at the East. We are happy to say that the State finances are now in a more prosperous condition than on any former occasion, there being upwards of $450,000 in the Treasury. In 1855 and 1856 the expenditures exceeded the receipts $581,000, while in 1857 the excess of receipts was $452,430. This gratifying result has been brought about mainly by retrenching the expenses of carrying on the Government. The amount of State debt which is authorized to be funded is $3,702,365; but other claims, which will probably be allowed, will make the amount about $3,900,000. The total amount of taxable property in the State in 1857 was $131,806,269, showing an increase of $18,348,269 upon the assessment of 1856. The United States Branch Mint in this city closes on the 20th inst. for the purpose of putting in new boilers. The demand for Money during the past fortnight has been moderate. Loans upon merchandise security are negotiable at 2@2½, and good paper at 2½@3 ₱ cent. ₱ month. Thus far there has been no pressing inquiry for bars, but the probabilities are that 880 fine will be salable to-morrow at about par. The receipts of Gold Dust exhibit no material change. In Stocks there has been no business done worth noting since last mail. We append our usual list, which has been completely revised.

The past fortnight has been marked by a speculative movement in breadstuffs, the effect of which, thus far, has been an advance in values of fully $2 50 ₱ bbl. for
